

MINISTER ELECTED TO SUCCEED MONIS

SENATOR GAUTHIER IS NAMED TODAY TO FILL GAP IN FRENCH CABINET.

EDITOR LAID AT REST

Many Notables Attend Funeral of Calmette, the Victim of Madame Caillaux.

Paris, March 20.—Three widely varied points of interest occupied the attention of the French public today in connection with the assassination of Gaston Calmette by Madame Caillaux.

The funeral of the victim of Madame Caillaux's revolver and the accompanying demonstrations were the chief attraction owing to the possibility of disorders and the extraordinary measures against disturbances in the streets of Paris.

The dislocation of the government by the resignation of ministers was next, but subsided in interest after the announcement of the complete resignation of the cabinet.

The last and most promising phase in respect to the likelihood of sensational developments was the examination of Joseph Caillaux and Ernest Monis, former ministers, as to their connection with the hanging up of the scandal about Henri Rochette, who was alleged to have defrauded the French public very extensively.

Paris, March 20.—The gap in the French cabinet caused by the resignation of Ernest Monis, former minister of justice, was filled today by the appointment of Senator Armand D'Earl Gauthier, a former minister of public works.

Ernest Monis, former premier of France, appeared today before the investigating committee of the chamber of deputies to explain his part in the scandal connected with the delay of the trial of Henri Rochette, who is said to have swindled the French public out of many millions.

Tells of Rochette Case. Jean Jaures, the socialist leader, pressed today the committee. He requested Monis to tell in his own way what had happened in the affairs.

Monis said, "Joseph Caillaux, then minister of finance, called upon me early in March 1911, and asked me to approach the trial of Henri Rochette. He said that one of the lawyers desired the postponement of the proceedings. Caillaux added that owing to the financial situation the plea of insanity to be made at the trial would cause losses to the savings bank and would affect public loans. No political interest was mentioned."

Now as to Victor Fabre, the public prosecutor, he called upon me four or five times during my premiership to report to me on various matters. On this occasion I inquired whether on account of the financial situation the trial could be deferred.

Hold Calmette Funeral. The funeral of Gaston Calmette, victim of Madame Caillaux, took place today in the church of St. Francois des Sales, in the northwestern district of Paris, and within a block of the residence of his assassin.

Hours before the procession moved war bands filled the streets. The police and military authorities had taken great precautions to prevent any disturbances. The police were out in force all along the route.

The underground railway stations nearby were under guard and the police had instructions to close them if the crowds became too great to handle.

Squadrons of mounted republican guards also were under arms and occupied strategic positions.

CLAIMS TARIFF LAW FAILS IN PURPOSE

Allows Importation of Foodstuffs Which American Growers Cannot Compete Against.

Madison, Wis., March 20.—The tariff enacted by congress in 1913 discriminates in favor of the cities as against agricultural communities, according to Dr. Charles McCarthy, head of the legislative reference library. In support of his contention, he points to the speech of Secretary Redfield of the commerce and labor department at Hamilton, Ohio, last month.

Mr. Redfield mentioned the thousands of heads of cattle, the millions of bushels of oats and corn, and the billions of pounds of flour that have been shipped to this country during the last few months as a result of the new tariff law.

"This tariff is a city tariff," declared Dr. McCarthy. "Our cities are already overbuilt. A wise statesman would get alarmed at this circumstance. A nation, as Bismarck pointed out, must exist on its rural population. This tariff allows Canada, Australia and Argentina to send a part of their virgin soil to our cities. A product that costs $1 to produce in America is sold in our cities for 80 cents. No American farmer unorganized can compete under these conditions."

"The tariff," he said, "is a city tariff. It is a tariff that favors the cities and the cities are already overbuilt. It is a tariff that favors the cities and the cities are already overbuilt. It is a tariff that favors the cities and the cities are already overbuilt."

One thing is true, the unorganized farmer who goes to the wall, and the only hope is in organization. In this situation will the Sherman act and its amendments be allowed to complete the wreck and keep farmers from organizing to get better prices?"

Dr. McCarthy said that he had been to the committee now considering the amendments to the Sherman law.

Three Men of Western Coal Co. Convicted on Charge of Defrauding Government on Import Duties.

San Francisco, Calif., March 20.—Attorneys for the three Western Fuel Company's officers who were last night sentenced to varying prison terms for import duty fraud, called upon me early in March 1911, and asked me to approach the trial of Henri Rochette.

Now as to Victor Fabre, the public prosecutor, he called upon me four or five times during my premiership to report to me on various matters. On this occasion I inquired whether on account of the financial situation the trial could be deferred.

Hold Calmette Funeral. The funeral of Gaston Calmette, victim of Madame Caillaux, took place today in the church of St. Francois des Sales, in the northwestern district of Paris, and within a block of the residence of his assassin.

Hours before the procession moved war bands filled the streets. The police and military authorities had taken great precautions to prevent any disturbances. The police were out in force all along the route.

The underground railway stations nearby were under guard and the police had instructions to close them if the crowds became too great to handle.

Squadrons of mounted republican guards also were under arms and occupied strategic positions.

Notables Follow Bier. Among the notable personages present at the funeral were Emile Loubet, former president of the republic; Armand Briand and Louis Barthou, two former premiers; Prince Murat, Baron Robert de Rothschild, Ferdinand Lathurie, the attorney who is to defend Madame Caillaux; Sarah Bernhardt and hundreds of other celebrities.

SHOE WORKERS CALL A STRIKE IN OHIO

Four Thousand Employees of Concern at Portsmouth Affected by Walkout.

Portsmouth, O., March 20.—After an all night session the joint council of the United Shoe Workers of America this morning called a strike in the factories operated by the Selby, Drew and Excelsior companies in this city. Approximately 4,000 employees are affected. The strike is the result of the joint council's action as a result of the violation of the manufacturing agreement between the workers and employers and state industrial commission which resulted in a settlement of a recent strike affecting the same companies.

The employers demanded that all employees sign a new "no strike" agreement for a period of six months or be discharged.

MAKE VAIN SEARCH FOR MISSING WOMAN

Citizens, School Children and Soldiers Join in Search in Marshes for Waukegan Woman.

Waukegan, Ill., March 20.—Vain search last night and yesterday of marshes and lake shore by United States soldiers, members of the national guard, school boys and citizens, increased anxiety today as to the fate of Mrs. John Hemmen, who disappeared Tuesday.

Mrs. Hemmen left her home to purchase toys for her son's birthday, and was last seen by her friends walking north in Sheridan Road near the shore of Lake Michigan.

Deny Assertion of Diamond Merchant Receiver of Bankrupt Diamond Merchant Shows Diamonds Claimed Stolen Were Only Assets.

Chicago, March 20.—As a result of the reported theft from Daniel Epner, a New York jewelry salesman, of $55,000 worth of diamonds last week an ancillary receiver for Samuel Epner, his brother, was applied for today.

Epner's affairs already are in the hands of a receiver in New York. The petition filed here states that the jewels entrusted to Daniel Epner as salesman were the only assets of Samuel Epner. Daniel Epner's assertion that he was held up and robbed of the jewels cases under railroad fraud is said in the petition to be "highly improbable."

SUE MINE WORKERS FOR HEAVY DAMAGES

Colorado Fuel Company Charges Conspiracy and Seeks Million Dollar Judgment.

Trinidad, Colo., March 20.—Charging a combination by the United Mine Workers of America to injure the business of the coal corporation, a suit asking for damages to the amount of $1,000,000 and body judgment against President John T. White, vice president Frank J. Hayes and a score of others was filed today in the district court of Las Animas County by the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company.

Officials Undisturbed. Denver, March 20.—Officials of the United Mine Workers of America were little perturbed today over the announced intention of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company to file a suit asking damages of nearly $1,000,000 and body judgment against them.

John R. Lawson, executive board member from Colorado, characterized the contemplated action as "another attempt to harass the union and an admission of the inability of the company to break the strike called September 28, 1913."

AMERICAN OUTWITS GANG OF MEXICANS

Texan Captured by Mexican Kidnappers Escaped by Diving into Stream and Swimming to Safety.

Austin, Tex., March 20.—Charles Ballard, an American, was kidnapped by Mexicans, Wednesday, from Carrizo Springs, Tex., and escaped by diving into the Rio Grande river, according to dispatches today, to Governor Colquitt. The governor has wired to know whether Texas rangers are needed in the Carrizo Springs territory.

Sheriff Sends Report. The kidnapping was reported by W. T. Gardner, sheriff of Dimmit county. Gardner's telegram to the governor, dated March 19, reads:

"Charles Ballard, American, was kidnapped from city yesterday morning at nine o'clock by five Mexicans and led by rope around neck and hands tied behind him to Rio Grande river at mouth of San Ambrosio creek, near San Pedro ranch. Then led in river he cut the rope, freed himself and diving down stream escaped to Mexican side where he was shot at several times but not hurt. He plunged into the river, diving down, swam to American side and escaped to San Pedro ranch four miles from Rio Grande. All indications point to federal Mexican soldiers. Have sent for Ballard. Will arrive tomorrow evening."

Fletcher Sends Report. Washington, March 20.—Explanation of the reported destruction of the waterworks of Tampico which would imperil the largest foreign element there in violation of the agreement between American naval officers and General Aguilar of the constitutionalists is contained in an overnight wireless message from Rear Admiral Fletcher of Tampico. He says:

"Reports indicate that there are no constitutionalists nearer Tampico than Altair (about twenty miles). Neither side has advanced its outposts. The federalists withdrew their guard from the waterworks and the constitutionalists disabled the pump, requiring about eight days' repairs. The guards have been replaced at the waterworks and no serious shortage of water is anticipated."

GERMANY LICENSES BETTING ON RACES

Government Plans to Forfeiture by Collecting Heavy Fees From Bookmakers.

Berlin, March 20.—The German government's measure legalizing betting on horse racing through licensed book makers was published today.

The bill, which had been long heralded since a combatting hand and hoofs which have flourished under the existing law, restricting betting to the official, highly taxed pari-mutuels, the measure also makes it possible to bet among the lower and the middle classes, and to augment the government by taxing the immense sums now illicitly wagered.

The percentage to the race track owners from the taxing of the pari-mutuels is reduced by the new measure from 16 1/2 to 12 1/2 in order to popularize machine betting. Under the new law, book makers are to be submitted to a general tax of 6%.

Winners are to be further taxed on a graduated scale, ranging from 6 to 20% according to the odds. The new regulations are subject to a punishment of two years' imprisonment and confiscation of the bets, while the betters themselves are to be heavily fined.

The bill prohibits the public display of race results and tips and make illegal bets recoverable by legal action.

CANCEL LARGE PART OF RAILROAD DEBT

Agreement Filed in Court Cancelling Over Three Million Dollar Debt of Frisco Railroad.

St. Louis, March 20.—A debt of more than $3,900,000 which the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad owed Albert T. Perkins, as syndicate trustee, was cancelled today by the terms of an agreement filed with United States Circuit Judge Sanborn today. Two of the subsidiaries of the Frisco revert to the syndicate that promotes them. The indebtedness was in the form of notes aggregating $2,573,386 which had been given by the Frisco to Perkins as syndicate manager of the St. Louis Union Trust Company, and certain collateral given to guarantee the payment of certain loans.

KOETTERS ON TRIAL FOR KRAFT MURDER

Chicago Prosecutor Wants Death on Gallows for Cincinnati Woman Slayer.

Chicago, March 20.—Death on the gallows was asked for John B. "Handsome" Koettters when he was placed on trial today, accused of the murder of Mrs. Emma Kraft of Cincinnati. Koettters made a formal plea of "not guilty." The defendant was a 35-year-old married man, who here and taken here to a hotel where he beat her to death with a hammer, after robbing her of $3,500. Her body was found in the hotel in November, 1913. Koettters was captured in San Francisco last month.

PASS RESOLUTION ON DAIRY TRUSTS

State Board of Public Affairs and College Makes Investigation Into Fixing of Dairy Prices.

Madison, Wis., March 20.—Because an investigation conducted by the agricultural college and the state board of public affairs discloses that practically 80 percent of the butter and cheese products of the state are controlled by the "trust" which arbitrarily fixes prices, the state board of public affairs has passed a resolution requesting the governor to appoint a committee of Wisconsin farmers to attend the second national conference on marketing and farm credits, to be held in Chicago April 14-17. The resolution follows in part:

"Whereas, the state board of public affairs has authorized the use of certain brands certifying to the standards of purity and the quality of dairy and other farm products, and whereas, in order to develop within the state efficient and scientific organizations of farm producers for the standardization of their products and packages and betterment of the quality of farm products, and a more equitable distribution of the same and

"Whereas, a large per cent of Wisconsin dairy products is now sold and controlled by great packing companies, fix the state system of marketing these products through different boards of trade has given rise to certain grave abuses that may frustrate all attempts to raise the standard of purity of these goods by the farmers and

"Whereas, the existing anti-trust law should be modified so as to permit the free organization of farmers for the scientific production and sale of their products

It is resolved that the governor appoint a committee of farmers to represent their interests at the meeting of the national conference on marketing and farm credits, and that the Wisconsin delegates will go to Chicago with resolutions asking for specific amendments to the Sherman anti-trust law, changes of which are now pending before congress.

EXAMINERS QUARANTINED IN NEW YORK HOSPITAL

Albany, N. Y., March 20.—Four examiners from the state department of efficiency, who went to the state hospital at White to make an investigation of the accounts of the institution, were today quarantined by the hospital authorities because they had been exposed to small pox in a nearby village. The examiners will probably be detained at the institution for three weeks.

EAU CLAIRE TELEPHONE CASE GIVEN A HEARING TODAY

OPPOSES INCREASES IN RAILROAD RATES

Senator LaFollette Scores Railroads for Impudence and Mentions Some Recent Disclosures.

Madison, Wis., March 20.—"The railroads are demanding the privilege of increasing the freight rates upon the traffic of the country generally. They claim that their earnings are not sufficient to meet fixed charges and pay reasonable dividends to stockholders. And yet as this investigation proceeds day by day, the evidence discloses that millions upon millions in free service are bestowed upon special interests and picked favorites."

Under the title of "rebates in disguise," Senator LaFollette opposes the proposed increase of railroad rates, the application for which is now pending before the interstate commerce commission.

It is a matter of growing amazement that the railroads should have the impudence to expect the consumer to pay higher freight rates to increase the profits of his business at the expense of the public.

At great length the service rendered by the railroad companies is analyzed. He says that by all of these discriminations the financial interests have profited, adding: "Little wonder that the small shipper is being crowded out."

The interstate commerce commission recently made a finding in the investigation of allowances made by the interstate railroads to "industrial railways," which are, in fact, mere plant facilities of the big industries, continues the senator in his editorial. "There allowances" were found by the commission to amount to not less than fifteen millions of dollars annually. This is but another form of rebating to the big shipper.

Reeks With Favoritism. The disclosures which are being made day by day in the investigation which the commission is conducting, are scarcely less startling. The whole service literally reeks with the rankest favoritism and discrimination. The public sees nothing about this important proceeding in the press dispatches from Washington."

In his analysis he names the different transportation systems that are engaged in offering free service and give the estimated loss in revenues to the roads.

REACH SETTLEMENT IN MILK PRICE WAR

Chicago Producers Decide Not to Press Demands for the Present.

Chicago, March 20.—Cessation of active hostility in conflict over milk prices was announced by the Milk Producers' Association which advised its members that there was doubt whether it would be advisable to press its demands any longer.

"Probably we must be content to take this summer substantially last summer's prices," said a communication addressed by the milk board to the producers.

The board took the position that in spite of the base rate of $1.34 1/2 offered by a large milk seller that contract prices would not be likely to be less than the association price.

ARRIVES IN IRELAND TO CONSULT FORCES

SIR EDWARD CARSON ENTERS BELFAST TODAY AND MAKES DRAMATIC STORY.

WELCOME A NOISY ONE

Instruction From Army Headquarters Brings Infantry and Warships to Scene—Intense Feeling.

Belfast, Ireland, March 20.—Sir Edward Carson, leader of the unionists of Ulster, made a dramatic entry into the capital of the province today. His purpose of coming here is to consult with the other Ulster unionist leaders and with the commanders of the Ulster volunteer force.

The great activity displayed at unionist headquarters and in the army barracks has caused considerable excitement among the people at Belfast, who for days past have been momentarily expecting some decisive move on the part of unionist chiefs or the government.

Before landing this morning, Sir Edward received on board the steamer on which he had made the passage from England, Sir George Richardson, a former premier of the province.

ULSTER DOESN'T WANT HOME RULE

Ulster and the other Irish provinces.

According to the English government's present plan, Ulster will be exempted from the provisions of the Irish home rule for a term of at least six years. During this time the province will be under the imperial parliament, and will remain so after the six-year term if the imperial parliament so determines. Ulster is opposed to home rule because that provides for a franchise and an Irish parliament, when formed, will surely be Catholic.

son, a retired lieutenant general of the British army, who is commander-in-chief of the Ulster unionist forces together with his chief officers. As the party came down the gangway from the steamer to the pier, they found drawn up as a guard of honor the emergency force of picked men of the Ulster volunteers, who had been summoned to the unionist headquarters at a late hour last night. A big crowd gave them a noisy welcome, cheering wildly and firing into the air with their revolvers.

During the night automobiles had been kept busy moving stores and documents from the unionist headquarters, apparently and in view of the fact that the unionists had been summoned to the unionist headquarters at a late hour last night. A big crowd gave them a noisy welcome, cheering wildly and firing into the air with their revolvers.

Precaution of a rigorous character has been taken at the Victoria military barracks here.

In response to the instruction from army headquarters a detachment of two hundred infantry arrived at Newry today from Carrickfergus and another detachment from Mullingar. The garrison of Londonderry also was reinforced by one hundred men from Mullingar and two warships arrived in Dublin bay.

Feeling among the public in Belfast has become tense since yesterday's meeting of parliament. Soon after his arrival here Sir Edward Carson issued an appeal to his followers to preserve calm.

GIVEN WARNING ON SALE OF GAME FISH

State Game Law Governs Sale of Fish, Protecting Pike, Pickerel and Catfish.

Janesville grocers and fish dealers were given warning today by state game officials that violations of the state laws governing the sale of fish will be prosecuted. No game fish caught in this state can be sold from March first until June first, and this dealers have been offering for sale. The law allows the sale of pike and pickerel, classed as game fish, if they are imported from out of the state, where there is no protective laws, but fresh fish caught in this state can not be marketed. As evidence pike and pickerel offered must be frozen. Perch and bullheads are not classed as game fish.

MRS. JULIA MYERS IS LAID AT REST TODAY

Funeral Services Held This Afternoon at Two-thirty From Her Late Residence.

All that was mortal of Mrs. Julia Myers was laid at rest at Oak Hill cemetery beside her husband, the late Peter Myers, who preceded her to the world beyond some years ago, this afternoon. The funeral services were held from her late residence on East street at two-thirty, the Rev. Joseph Chalmers Hazen of the Baptist church reading the lines and saying the words of comfort to those who have been left behind to mourn her loss. The coffin was covered with handsome floral tributes and the spacious parlors filled with old friends who had come to pay their last respects to their departed friend. The pallbearers were all old friends of the family and for the most part sons of the men who had known Mrs. Myers in the early days when with her husband she worked so ably for the common good of the community which she had chosen for her home. They were: George McKee, M. O. Mount, Hiram Murdock, Robert Bostwick, Charles Bostwick, Fred Glemons and Herman Frick. The esteem that Mrs. Myers was held was evidenced by the beautiful floral tributes, many large set designs being in evidence aside from a profusion of cut flowers.

BOOKER WASHINGTON IS TO SPEAK HERE

Noted Color Educator to Talk on the Negro Problem April 24th.

Booker Washington, the noted colored educator, whose work among the negroes of this continent during the past fifty years has been most wonderful, will be in Janesville April 24th, and deliver a lecture at the Congregational church on the subject: "The American Negro After Fifty Years of Freedom." Arrangements for the lecture were made this afternoon by Charles Woods, a graduate of Beloit college with the class of 1895, who is at present in charge of the college library at Tuskegee, Alabama, the home of the great negro educational institution. Mr. Woods played tackle on the Beloit college football team for several years, and though himself colored, was very popular with the white students here who welcomed him most warmly. He also lectures on the negro problem and works with a group of students from Tuskegee college in a different section of the country from Mr. Washington.

Council Meeting: Regular meeting of the common council was scheduled this afternoon. It is expected the commissioners will provide for a voting place in the fourth ward, the Chris Wright building being considered.

CALL MASS MEETING ON LICENSE ISSUE

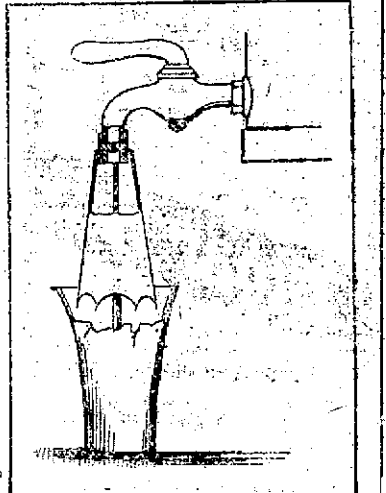

Men of Various Churches Will Discuss Matter at Y. M. C. A. Sunday Afternoon.

At a meeting of the presidents of the church brotherhoods to whom was referred the matter of submitting the question of license or no license to the voters at the spring election, it was decided to call a mass meeting of the men of the different churches and others interested for three-thirty o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. building. At this time a decision on the matter will be reached after the various aspects of the case have been thoroughly considered. If it is the verdict of the meeting to vote on license or no license, papers will be circulated at once in order to secure signatures to be filed at the clerk's office to allow proper notice within the time specified by the statutes.

SANITARY SHIELD ON FAUCET

Device to Keep Ringing of Lardless Persons From Water Supply.

With all the means that are taken to safeguard our drinking water there are some persons who do not seem to appreciate the need of care in this respect, and it is quite a common thing to see a person unnecessarily handle the spigot from which he has just drawn some water. It is especially dangerous in the case of a child who has been taught to drink from the spigot. A sanitary shield for faucets which is a recent invention which is designed to overcome these dangers. It is made of metal and the shield end is fitted with a cup which takes hold of the faucet in place. The depending guard is long enough to prevent the hands of persons drawing water for cereal, milk, etc., from coming in contact with the end of the spigot either by accident or design.

FALLING HAIR AND ITCHING SCALP

Entirely Needless—Use Parisian Sage. It Quickly Removes Dandruff—Your Head Feels Fine.

Now that Parisian Sage can be had at any drug or toilet counter, it is certainly needless to have thin, brittle, matted, stringy or faded hair. No matter how unightly the hair, how badly it is falling, or how much dandruff, use Parisian Sage—it is all that is needed. One application removes dandruff, the hair roots are nourished and stimulated, to grow new hair, itching scalp and falling hair cease, your head feels fine. Best of all, the hair becomes soft, fluffy, abundant and radiant with life and beauty.

You will be surprised and delighted with Parisian Sage. Try at least one fifty cent bottle. Smith Drug Co. will refund the purchase price if you are not satisfied.

Look for the trade-mark—"The Girl with the Auburn Hair"—accept no other.

JANESVILLE MAN IS ONE OF DEFENDANTS

Grant U. Fisher, With Other Former Members of State Fair Board, Held for Damages in Aero-plane Accident.

According to dispatches from Milwaukee, Grant U. Fisher of this city and four other members of the Wisconsin State Fair board for 1910 are assessed damages of $3,000 which were awarded Mrs. Irene Morrison of Wauwatosa in a suit for $10,000 against the five members for injuries received when Archer Hoxey's aeroplane fell into the crowd in front of the grand stands on the last day of the state fair in that year. The jury in a special verdict found the defendants guilty of negligence in allowing the flight to start where it did on the race track. The five against whom the damages will be assessed are Grant U. Fisher, C. H. Everatt, George Wylie, George McKerron and Ed. Nordman.

O. L. BROWNELL WRITES OF CONDITIONS IN PANAMA

O. L. Brownell, who sailed from New York March twenty-second for the Canal Zone, Panama, writes that there have been many changes since he left there. Mr. Brownell has taken up his old position in the building and construction department, and at present is at work on the new administration building at Balboa. This building will contain all the offices of the entire zone.

Need Attention in February and March or Face Will Stay Covered.

Now is the time to take special care of the complexion if you wish it to look well the rest of the year. The February and March winds have a strong tendency to bring out freckles that may stay all summer unless removed. Now is the time to use othine—double strength.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful that it is sold by Badger Drug Co. under guarantee to refund the money if it fails. Get an ounce of othine—double strength, and even a few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the smaller freckles even vanishing entirely.

Sport Snap Shots

Notwithstanding the prevalent ideas regarding Willie Ritchie's turns in the ring, he has announced that he will fight again the second week in May. He is to meet Jimmy Duffy in Buffalo. It was pretty generally thought after Willie had met and battled with Ad. Wolgast successfully that he would not care to undertake another scrap till the fall of 1923 at the earliest. But Willie seems set in his determination to fight soon again and it is thought by many that while it is enough for him to try and rival Bar Levisky in frequent appearances, he seems apt to carry the thing too far. Have a care there, Willie.

Harry Coveleskie and Dode Criss are two of the veteran bush league recruits of the game. Both these men have been in and out of the big show oftener perhaps than any others in the game's history. They are rather interesting persons. Harry Coveleskie is trying out with the Tigers this spring and Dode Criss hopes to land with the Highlanders. This is Coveleskie's third effort to make good in fast company. In 1908 Coveleskie made his first impression in big league circles when he won for himself the title of "Giant Killer" by beating the Giants twice and spoiling their chance at the pennant. And he became a household word over night. However, he wasn't able to show enduring class and was returned to whence he came, i. e., the bushes. He was brought back later by Cincinnati, only again to be told to pursue himself into the sticks. It is said of Coveleskie that he remarked, upon being canned a second time, that he could pitch circles around most of the hicks they were hiring and he knew it. However, this third whirl he is taking at major league bids fair to make him a fixture. He is really putting over the class. The case of Criss is quite similar. He won fame in 1908 by out-batting Ty Cobb. He pinch-hit around St. Louis a while with indifferent success and was handed to Louisville, where he flunked dismally. He then went to Houston, where he finally began to take on the aspects of a regular pitcher and won game after game. And particularly he mastered his control. His one besetting sin as a pitcher in the American league was to hurl the ball recklessly over the 75 cent seats. The Highlanders heard of this rejuvenation and promptly copped him off. And those who think they know do tell that he shows every indication of sticking in fast company this time for keeps. Such, gentle reader, is the story of Dode Criss and Harry Coveleskie, the veteran comebacks of baseball.

Ad. Wolgast, though not a champ, has done a great deal better. In a money way his past six months than many a title holder. Ad estimates that in that length of time he has accumulated something like $68,500.

FOLLOWERS OF TEAM AWAIT FINAL COUNT IN WAUWATOSA GAME

Milwaukee Suburb Quintet 'Claim They Will Defeat Janesville Champions at Whitewater Tonight.

The question has arisen in the minds of local basketball fans are the Wauwatosa players all that rumors are making them out to be, or are they second raters, who can stand a good beating? Janesville high school champions are attempting to answer these questions, without much success. What the champs do know about the situation is that they triumphed Jefferson 85 to 22, on the local floor, while Jefferson in turn won from Wauwatosa on the latter's own floor, 34 to 24. The teams play on a neutral floor tonight, at seven o'clock, at the Whitewater Armory.

MAY MEET OUMET SOON IN SOUTH

Considerable interest is aroused by the possibility of the much talked match between Francis Oumet and Chic Evans, the golf cracker, in the near future. There is a probability that Evans will go South soon and in that event there will be strenuous efforts to bring the pair together.

DICKERSON AND OSBORN TAKE FIRST POSITION WITH SCORE OF 1086

Richards and Cook were king of the castle for just twenty-four hours for when Dickerson and Osborn got to heaving the balls down the alley, they knocked them off their high perch to a less dignified one in the one place Osborn averaged 210% and with Dickerson's help rolled up their score of 1086. Osborn boosted up the nail score by topping off 236 in the last round. In the singles no high scores were stirring. Lee winning the evening's individual honors with 493 closely followed by Nelson with 490. After this tournament is run off, a tourney between six five-men teams will be scheduled. The star bowlers will be divided up and competition promises to be keen between the teams.

PRIZES OF DOGDOM BEING EXHIBITED AT MILWAUKEE THIS WEEK

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Milwaukee, Wis., March 20.—Milwaukee's dog show de luxe opened in the auditorium here today with 500 kings and queens of canine land on the benches. The Wisconsin Kennel club has secured a place on the western circuit of the American association and fifty per cent of the animals on display were from outside points. Competition promised to be keen for the non professional as there were no choice between the dogs in the various classes. At the conclusion of the show here the dogs will be taken to St. Louis, Chicago, Kansas City, and other places on the western circuit. The judging began with the opening of the exhibition. William Loeffler is passing on the satchonds, Louis Stephens the beagles and foxhounds, Joseph Meisenheimer the St. Bernards and Dr. C. A. White of Chicago is choosing winners in all other breeds.

WEATHER FORECAST.

In this vicinity the approach of the disturbance in the northwest will be attended by stormy weather, increasing cloudiness and warmer weather tonight, snow flurries and brisk, shifting winds Saturday.

PEACE IN MEXICO.

Possibly Wilson's attitude of watching and waiting is going to work out all right in the end in this Mexican tangle. Reports now have it that Huerta is ready to resume negotiations with John Lind, as Wilson's personal representative, and an exchange says that this is due to exigencies not of a military but of a financial character. All along it has been the claim of Huerta and his friends that the Huerta administration would be able to quickly restore order if it could obtain money. The treasury was looted before it came into power. Huerta's exasperation against the United States for refusal to recognize him has been augmented by the conviction that recognition by the United States at once would enable his administration to borrow money.

The personal representative sent by Huerta to confer with President Wilson's personal representatives at Vera Cruz is Jose Lopez Portillo Rojas, who was governor of Jalisco and not in the City of Mexico at the time when Madero was slain. He is a man of influence, and has been mentioned among the presidential possibilities in case of the withdrawal of Huerta. The feeling prevails in the City of Mexico and at Vera Cruz that Signor Rojas will be persona grata to Mr. Lind.

It takes place, the conference which is expected to occur between Rojas and Lind may lead to important results. Its outcome will be watched with the keenest interest not only by Mexicans, but the people of the United States, who are growing very weary of conditions in Mexico, though not at all eager that the United States should incur the responsibility of war, and who would rejoice at any prospect of improvement of the situation, either by the strengthening of Huerta or by support for someone else in his place.

SPARES NO ONE.

Gifford Pinchot, who seems to be the life of the progressive party, has branded all the rest of the progressives as cowards because they talked of joining with the republican party. At Huron, South Dakota, on Tuesday night Mr. Pinchot said in part, regarding the republican party:

"Disloyal to its traditions and its record, split into factions, contentious, unhappy, weak, its last days are upon it."

Of progressive republican leaders he said:

Cummings: "Personally upright, he is hopelessly out of touch with the political thought of the day."

Borah: "He has earned and well earned the pitying contempt of all men of all parties who believe that principles are things to stand by even to a man's own hurt. Stable as water, Borah can never excel."

Bristow: "He has broken his own career because he was afraid."

Hadley: "We lost at Chicago because Hadley tried to force his own nomination."

La Follette: "There is hardly a more striking example in American history of the decay of a great career by the setting of personal ambition and private animosity before the will of the people and public good."

There you have it all in a nutshell. It is a rule or ruin policy with no compromise. The pirates who relent must walk the plank and the jolly roger still flies from the mast head.

SPRING IS DUE.

Saturday marks the official advent of the spring months to the northern continent. While it may arrive officially, it is possible that our old friend Winter will seek to remain with us for a period, just to let us know that he is about. But the robins have arrived and that is one of the sure signs of warmer weather. Ducks have started northward and the ice has gone out of the river, and while still solid on the lakes and ponds will rapidly disappear with a few warm days and bright sunshine. Watch to see which way the wind is blowing tomorrow morning and you will have a good idea of the prevailing winds for the next three months.

THE FIRE DRILL.

The importance of fire drills in schools was strikingly illustrated the first of the present week when the big dormitory at Wellesley college was burning to the ground, and students, teachers and employees all marched to safety, with the discipline of soldiers, escaping what would have been certain death had a panic ensued or some of the teachers or students lost their heads. Too much importance cannot be placed on fire drills in schools.

SPRING CLEANING.

Dr. Buckmaster, the city health officer, makes the suggestion that spring is the clean-up time. That for the sake of sanitation all alleys, ash piles, refuse dumps and breeding places for flies and disease be cleaned away. The average man dreads the spring house-cleaning, but it is one of the necessities of the average home. While doing it this year plan some change, some innovation, and mark the general effect. Be one of the disciples of making Janesville "The Spotless Town."

The crisis in France, brought about by the act of one woman who shot and killed an editor who dared publish facts about her husband and things in general, will not lead to a revolution, but may help to clarify the situation in France where the citizens are ever ready for a change.

Mme. Caillaux, who shot and killed M. Calmette in Paris, said to her captors, "Let me go, I am a lady." Doubtless she had been reading about the Chicago women who murdered people and were cleared by juries.

Fayette, Missouri, lynchings were so quiet in their work that they did not even disturb persons attending the theatre across the street from the scene of their activities.

Being young ladies the students at Wellesley hate awfully to have to stop studying and take a vacation because of the fire that destroyed their school house.

Lloyds now insure men against paying alimony, but what girl would take a chance with a cold-blooded chap who would deliberately take out such a policy before marriage?

Chicago candidates for aldermen are carrying around one pocket full of cigars and one full of gum drops these balmy spring days.

The report that the Chinese republic is tottering is an infringement on the prerogatives of thrones and should not be permitted.

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

KEEPING SILENCE WELL.

Many persons can talk well, but few can keep silence well.

That is a faculty well worth cultivating—the art of being able to hold one's peace at the proper time. It is an art which few understand and fewer still practice.

The phrase "not to keep silence well" is taken from a story by Charles Dickens and Wilkie Collins. It characterizes a person who, "when he keeps silent you can hardly help vaguely, though, perhaps most unjustly, mistrusting him."

Now—
To talk too much is the sign of an empty mind. To talk too little may indicate the same thing.

But—
There is such a thing as "keeping silence well."

It is knowing when to talk and when not to talk. It is knowing how to fit together the mosaic of speech and silence in such a way as to form a true picture, with none of the pieces overlapping another and spoiling the effect. It is the mingling of the elements in a musical composition so that harmony and not discord may be the result.

Of course there is another sense in which the phrase "to keep silence well" may be applied. It is the figurative sense. It indicates the time when speaking on a subject should be forbidden by the inner voice which tells one that no good may be accomplished by outspokenness.

Suppose, for instance, that you know of wrongdoing, honestly repented, in another's life. He is trying to live it down. It is a secret known perhaps to you and him alone.

"Keep silence well" by not telling it to another, since no good purpose can come of its publication to the world. Let him outlive his past if he can.

Or perhaps you are employed with another who makes an error in his work. The mischief is done and cannot be undone. Do not cast stumbling blocks in your brother's path by revealing it to others.

If you can do so without bringing offense call it to his attention and to his alone, that he may know how to avoid similar error in the future.

So shall you "keep silence well."

A COMPLETING CANAL FOR PANAMA?

Just now the newspapers are carrying stories to the effect that Philippe Bunau-Varilla is back of a project to build a new isthmian canal through Colombian territory, on charter rights granted by Colombia to English promoters. Those cognizant of the facts in the case refuse to get very much wrought up over this story. In the first place, there is only one place where it would be at all possible to build a canal connecting the two oceans, through Colombian territory—and that is known as the Atrato River route. To build a canal across the Andes at this place would require, to begin with, a tunnel, and this tunnel would have to be many miles long. The estimated cost per mile of a tunnel permitting the passage of ships with a draft of 33 feet would, according to a report to Congress, be not less than $22,500,000 a mile. Furthermore, the isthmus at this place is twice as wide as at Panama, and the engineering problems much more than twice as great. As a matter of fact, all this means that a total outlay of a billion dollars would be required, at the lowest estimate, to duplicate the Panama Canal along the Atrato river, and no private enterprise in the world can be expected to finance such an enterprise, with a competing canal already in the business.

It is true that the United States did offer Colombia ten million dollars for exclusive rights of canal building on Colombian territory, but that was more in the nature of an effort to appease Colombia's ruffled feelings over the Panama Revolution than to prevent competition, governmental or otherwise. The whole story of canal routes is nowhere else so tersely and impartially told as in "The Panama Canal," which The Gazette is distributing to its readers at cost. Save the coupons.

One Death in Every Seven is for Tuberculosis

The human mouth is the greatest and most extensive breeding place for all disease germs.

At least 90 per cent of all tubercular infections take place through diseased and ill kept mouths.

You That Save No Money

Think this over. What expense can you cut off which will put you ahead $1000 in ten years. Do you spend thirty cents a day for some luxury or other? That amount saved would give you more than $1000 in ten years and a lot of interest money besides.

Try it and make yourself independent.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE IN AN AUTO WRECK

Frank Brox, Driving One of Roesting Bros' Delivery Autos, Severely Injured.

Frank Brox, driver of one of the delivery autos of the Roesting Bros., met with a serious accident shortly after four o'clock Thursday afternoon when the car he was driving skidded against the curb and then turned over on him, pinning him beneath it and rendering him unconscious. From the story of an eye witness, John Aldrich, who was driving one of the large drays of E. T. Fish, the delivery car was coming up Galea street at the intersection of Jackson at a high rate of speed, turned out slightly for his team, skidded into the curb, and before the driver could regain control, the car straightened out, turned over, pinning young Brox beneath it. Aldrich hastened to his assistance and held the car up from the body of the unconscious man until other help arrived, when he was removed to the residence of Philip Koch, where Dr. Fred Sutherland was summoned, and he was later taken to his home, 715 Linn street, where the car itself is reported to have been severely damaged, and young Brox is at his home in a serious condition. According to several witnesses the car was being driven at a high rate of speed and the accident occurred just as the driver was about to turn it back into its course quick enough to prevent its capsizing.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Adjourn Case: On the consent of the contesting attorneys, E. D. McGowan for the plaintiff and J. Cunningham for the defendant, the case of Allan Keithline, against Lewis Rummage, civil action, was adjourned for one week.

STRAIGHT TALK HEARD

L. E. Bookout Tells Board a Few Facts Regarding Jansville Conditions Affecting High School Boys.

Members of the Jansville board of education met in special session at the high school at five o'clock Thursday afternoon, listened to the report of Superintendent E. C. Buell on his further investigation into the alleged misconduct of high school students at the Beloit college basketball tournament, passed several resolutions calculated to regulate such matters in the future, and called the inquiry closed.

In the course of the meeting, however, the board heard a straight talk from L. E. Bookout, former scout-master of the Jansville Boy Scouts, who has been intimately connected with local boys in various capacities for several years. He declared that the board would make a mistake if it dealt with an incident instead of a condition, and he did not hesitate to state what that condition is.

"It's now five-thirty," said Mr. Bookout, "and I'll wager if any one of you men will go down Milwaukee street and look into the pool halls you'll find anywhere from four to a dozen high school boys in each place." Here Councillman Millmore interrupted to state that he did not know of any law which prohibited minors from entering pool halls, only to learn that such a regulation had been on Wisconsin statutes for years.

"And another thing," continued Bookout, "you don't have to stop at pool rooms, for I believe and I know that you will find high school boys in saloons and they are not there for any creditable purpose either. I don't know of a certainty, but I strongly suspect that if you looked around a bit after eleven o'clock and on Sundays you might find a few saloon back doors unlocked. What's more, you'll find that there are plenty of slot machines in operation all over town and I'll wager that the majority of persons who play them are high school boys."

"All you men have to do to know that these things are so is to walk down the street and make a little investigation. There are constant occurrences. They are the regular thing. I sympathize with the position that Mr. Buell is in, because the best school man in the world cannot make a moral student body or keep a lot of boys straight when such conditions exist in a city. It's the city you have to clean up to begin with in order to expect the right sort of conduct from the boys."

Although a resolution was introduced which provided that high school athletic teams should be prohibited from contests at Beloit for a period of one year at least, the same failed to pass and there was no action taken affecting the immediate case under investigation. Mr. Buell was responsible for the statement made at the close of the board meeting that as a matter of fact there would be no athletic contests at Beloit for at least a year and that he would make that ruling himself.

"You can quote me to that effect," said Mr. Buell, "for I believe that such a step is necessary and wise."

A. M. Fisher introduced that first resolution to be passed by the board yesterday. It reads as follows:

"Resolved, that the athletic teams that go out from this school and the student body that accompanies them, be held responsible to this board for their good conduct."

"And be it further resolved that such contests be discontinued for such time as the board shall determine, if the conduct of such teams and student body is not satisfactory to this board."

"And it is also resolved that the athletic teams and student body be given notice of this resolution."

F. C. Grant was author of the two other resolutions which are given below:

"Any member of a high school athletic team who shall be found guilty of entering a saloon, shall be dropped from the team, and member of the student body who shall enter a saloon shall be subject to investigation and discipline by the superintendent unless such entrance shall be shown to be necessary."

The third resolution announces the fact that the inquiry is ended:

"Resolved that this investigation is closed and that the basketball team be allowed to continue its activity, in the discretion of the superintendent."

It is understood from the above resolution that the team will be allowed to participate in the tournament at Appleton, which of course depends on the result of the elimination game at Whitewater tonight.

Today's Edgerton News.

Edgerton, March 20.—For the second consecutive time the Edgerton high school basketball team won the Milton tournament, thus retaining the championship cup. Edgerton far outplayed the other teams in the games. All of the coaches choose for the all tournament teams the following from the Edgerton team: First team, McIntosh, Sutton and Brown; second team, Whitsett and Johnson; in the game with Stoughton yesterday afternoon we won by a score of 35 to 17. In the evening in the game with Monroe we won by a 29 to 16 score.

EXPECT FAIR VOTE AT CITY PRIMARY

Voters Urged to Cast Ballot in City
Primary on Tuesday—Polls Open Until Eight O'clock.

On Tuesday, March twenty-fourth, the voters of this city will cast their ballots in the city primary election and with favorable weather, a fair vote is expected as the election for commissioner to succeed C. K. Millmore promises to be spirited. The entire city vote is estimated around 2,400, but at the recall last year, a record vote was cast, over 3,200 votes being polled.

Voters are urged to use their franchise because of the importance of the primary. The polling places are located as follows:

First ward—In the street commissioner's room in the basement in the northeast corner of the city hall building.

Second ward—In the building owned by the city on North Main street, at the foot of Prospect avenue.

Third ward—In the room situated in the basement of the public library building, in the southeast corner, entrance on Park street.

Fourth ward—In Wright building between Dodge and Pleasant streets.

Fifth ward—In the building owned by the city on Holmes street, near Center avenue.

The names of the six commissioners will be placed on the same ballot with the candidates for the ward offices for school commissioner, constable, and supervisors. The names of the candidates for commissioner are as follows: Peter J. Goodman, 311 W. Milwaukee street; William Hall, 530 South Bluff street; George P. Kelly, 329 South Wisconsin street; Chancy K. Millmore, 1015 South Center avenue; George Scarvitt, 164 South Franklin street; James J. Senett, 812 Court street. The voters will only cast one vote for commissioner and the two receiving the "highest" number of votes will be placed on the ballots at the general election. The polls will open from six o'clock in the morning until eight in the evening, allowing the voters plenty of opportunity to cast their vote.

FOULKE E. BRANDT IS GONE FOR GOOD

Foulke E. Brandt.

Foulke E. Brandt, who was sentenced to prison for thirty years for an assault upon his employer, Mortimer Le Schiff, and caused a popular upheaval and a political tangle by protests against the justice of his sentence and innuendoes about the domestic life of his employers until he was pardoned by Governor Suizer a year ago, has left the United States forever.

Brandt returned from Sweden a short time ago to ask a chorus girl in New York to marry him. She, having heard of his prison experience, and notorious career, turned him down.

REPORT SHOWS GAIN BY COMMITMENT LAW

Report of Sheriff Whipple Shows
Over Four Thousand Dollars
Gain Under Commitment Law.

Results of the commitment law, which allows the paroling of prisoners from the county jail, and which was effective in Rock county in September, 1913, is shown by the report of Sheriff C. S. Whipple. From September eighth last year, when the first prisoner was sentenced under the new law, up to March nineteenth, approximately $4,205.64 has been gained from the wages of the paroled prisoners.

Of this amount the dependents of the convicted persons received a total of $2,517.63, which has been already collected and turned over by Sheriff Whipple. There still remains nearly five hundred dollars to be collected, which is not included in the above amount. It is estimated that around seven hundred dollars has been deducted from the prisoners' wages for necessities of life, and when paroled out to the employer, instructions are given to purchase needs for the paroled man the amount to be deducted from the wages paid over, but an account must be kept of the amount spent. This is one of the best features of the law, for in numerous cases families were dependent on the wages and would have suffered with out money earned while under the commitment sentence.

The county has received a total amount of $112.86, not considering seventy-five dollars to be collected within the next week for wages before the nineteenth.

Rock county has been practically the only county in the state where the law has proven such a success. No trouble has been experienced in paroling the prisoners, in fact, it is seldom that any are placed behind locked doors, for there is always a waiting list of places needing help.

TO COMMENCE CHORUS SINGING NEXT WEEK

High School Students Must Face Musical Drills, at Least Twice a Week, Starting Monday.

Believing that music establishes higher ideals among students, authorities at the Janesville high school have adopted a method whereby students at the local institution can be instructed at least twice each week, in regular morning drills from singing books, which the board of education recently purchased.

Miss Emily Sewell, instructor in music in the city schools, will be the conductor, and promises to hold some enthusiastic musical meetings during the course of the next three months.

All forms of music will be rendered by the students, as the books contain many varieties of selections. While the interest at present among the students is not where it should be, there is every reason to believe that the enthusiasm will grow, and that good benefits will be derived.

LINK AND PIN ST. PAUL WILL SOON COMPLETE ROAD WORK

New Lines of Milwaukee Road Will Be Ready for Traffic by July
First, After Record
Construction.

Reconstruction work begun by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad during 1912, is now near completion and will be turned over for traffic on or about July first, is the opinion of the engineering experts of the road.

During the last three years the entire line from the Mississippi river to Omaha have been practically rebuilt and double-tracked, new grades, heavier rails and the distance to the western division point and terminal have been greatly reduced by the changes. The engineering force that was employed on this record time work, had just completed the new extension to Seattle and Tacoma, and during the two years' time these experienced road builders smashed all records in putting through fifteen hundred miles of new railroad transverse mountain country that brought forth manifold engineering problems that taxed the ability of the country's experts. The field force for the reconstruction of the Omaha lines, was picked from these men and with their experience the road was able to rush the Iowa project and complete the work in such remarkable time.

A terse epigram in Panama, "Make the dirt fly," made good here, and the road builders in Iowa demonstrated that they could make the rails fly also across Iowa. The St. Paul company aims to handle a great amount of the traffic to the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915 over their new lines.

The Chicago-Omaha was double-tracked and rebuilt at an expenditure of over twenty million dollars. This includes the Des Moines river bridge, one of the longest and highest railroad bridges in the world, which cost one million dollars. The rushing of the work took an army of men with one hundred steam shovels and locomotives, and enough dynamite and explosives to wreck the Mexican armies and the work was done with equal to that of the big ditch digging.

HOG PRICES REMAIN AT HIGHER LEVELS

Market Shows Slight Advance Over
Yesterday's Rally As a Result of Light Receipts.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, March 20.—Another advance of five cents in the price of hogs as a result of the day's light receipts brought top prices to $9.90, coming on top of yesterday's substantial rally. Packers were again reluctant to enter heartily into the buying, which was partly responsible for a slow tone which developed after the first rush of shippers. Cattle receipts of 1,000 head found a steady market with prices holding steady.

Sheep had a steady trade with light receipts. Quotations follow:

WILSON'S TOLL TALK

PROVED INTERESTING

Much Criticism is Made on Work of
Chief Executive—Achievements
Are Not Satisfactory.

(By Winfield Jones.)

Washington, D. C., March 20.—No man was ever inaugurated president of the United States who was held in higher personal esteem than President Wilson. Regardless of party affiliation he possessed the good will of the people honestly and disinterestedly. His administration should be a successful one.

That the president has lost the regard of a vast majority of true Americans because of his plan to repeal free tolls for American ships is generally conceded in Washington.

It was one of the greatest humiliations that democratic members of congress ever experienced when they had to listen to President Wilson in his free tolls message ignore his publicly uttered pre-election opinion, repudiate a fundamental plank in the platform of his party, and instruct congress to stultify itself and repeal the section of the law granting free tolls to American coastwise shipping using the Panama Canal, and thus definitely acknowledge to the world that this country has surrendered the moral and under international law, long and firmly established legal right of every nation to exercise absolute sovereignty over its coastwise shipping commerce.

The president delivered his instructions in a few didactic sentences, but his message contained no explanation of his change of mind on this most important subject, and gave congress no facts to sustain his position and no reason other than his personal command to reverse itself.

While the president was delivering his instructions to congress Secretary of State Bryan sat in the diplomatic gallery of the house, smiling, nodding approval and applauding, evidently for the moment forgetting that the democratic platform adopted at Baltimore contained the words:

"We favor exemption from tolls of American ships engaged in coastwise trade, passing through the canal," and that every sentence in the Baltimore platform was written or approved by him; that not a word or punctuation mark was inserted in that platform without being first submitted to and endorsed by him.

The presidential nominee was undoubtedly correct when he said, "that platform was not molasses to catch flies." Certainly it was not that particular plank seems to have been a shell game to skin suckers and bunco hayseeds.

The policies and achievements of the president certainly cannot be viewed with satisfaction and commendation by his political adherents. He made a failure of the tariff act, even from a democratic standpoint, by interjecting himself into the situation and forcing the way and means committee to accept his views instead of the views of the men of his party on that committee who had practical experience and possessed expert and technical knowledge of the subject. He made a failure of the banking and currency act, so far as the bill as it originally passed the house is concerned.

Many of the crudities of the house bill were amended out of it in the senate, not because the president wished the house bill to be amended, but because the senate would not pass it without amending it so as to make it workable and in a degree effective.

His experimental diplomacy has proven to be a failure. When he was inaugurated as president, our diplomatic relations with the world were friendly, influential and dignified. Today they are unfriendly, ineffective and ridiculous.

SHIPWRECKED BUT DRY SHOD

Life-Saving Device Protects Unfortunates From Exposure to Sea.

With the aid of the device shown here, it may be possible to participate in a shipwreck at sea and be rescued without even the trifling inconvenience of getting one's feet wet, which is certainly a much more desirable manner of being shipwrecked than of being thrown overboard with one's head thrust through the hole of a big doughnut-like device and one's feet dangling in the biting deep below.

In a few words the lifesaving apparatus shown in the illustration consists of two parts of collapsible material and when it is in storage on shipboard it takes up but little room. But when the emergency arises for its use the parts are extended and one person enters it. The construction is drawn up and around and over the head where it is locked in position for the purpose of keeping the water from entering it. In this manner it is anticipated the occupant will float around in a more or less comfortable frame of mind until sighted and picked up by some passing vessel. The double case adds to the sturdiness of the device. The inside shell is waterproof and keeps out the water. The outside is of more substantial material and offers a resistance to rough usage.

CLUB DELEGATES TO MEET NEXT TUESDAY

Representatives of Various Organizations to Confer With Civic League Committee.

Representatives of the various lodges, clubs and men's organizations of the city who were appointed at the request and invitation of the Janesville Civic League, will hold their first meeting with the league committee on Tuesday evening at seven-thirty at the city hall. All clubs which have not named their delegates to meet with the league board are urged to do so at once so that there will be a full representation at the first meeting.

It will be the purpose of the conference to discuss ways and means for the accomplishing of a betterment in social, sanitary, moral and civic conditions in Janesville.

The idea of the civic league is that many helpful suggestions as well as an impelling force will be added to their endeavors through the co-operation of the men's societies.

Little Paradise Set in the Sea.

The island of Trinidad is 55 miles long and 40 miles wide, and has an area of approximately 1,800 square miles. A chain of mountains extends throughout its length, the highest of which is about 3,000 feet above the sea level. The population of the island is estimated at 340,000.

The Pendulum.
It is perfectly true that Galileo discovered the true or isochronal property of the pendulum in 1639, and also that the philosophical Huyghens in 1658 wrote a learned treatise applying the principle to clocks. But an Englishman, John Harrie, invented and made a pendulum clock in 1641 in London. Barlow, a London clock-maker, invented the striking part in 1676, and in 1815 George Graham applied mercury to the pendulum to compensate against varying temperatures.

Lotus Eaters.
In Greek legends lotus eaters were a people who ate the fruit and drank the juice of the lotus, a prickly shrub possessing the power to cause consumers to lose all thoughts of home and kindred and to sink into a stupor in which they were but half awake and half asleep. The term is now sometimes applied to persons who forget the claims of relatives and country, or to those who lead a languid and listless life.

THE LAWFUL USE OF THE SABBATH.

The Pharisees had converted the Sabbath into a juggernaut. They rolled it over men's hearts. With their spirit-destroying literalism Jesus took issue, breaking the tradition, but keeping the day. He worked seven miracles on as many Sabbaths as if to show the merciful character of the day. On this occasion he was addressing a certain synagogue with his presence and teaching when a woman's terrible infirmity made its own appeal to him. The muscles and ligaments of her back were so wasted by disease that, instead of supporting her body, they allowed it to bend forward and were powerless to raise it even for a moment. Jesus' heart was touched to pity; the more so as the sufferer proved herself a worthy daughter of Abraham by attendance in spite of infirmity. The Master introduced a miracle of healing as a part of the ritual that day, and the walls of that synagogue rang with the gladdest "Hallelujah!" ever heard there. It swelled to a chorus as all the people rejoiced at the glorious thing done. Yet not all were glad. Incredible as it may seem, the ruler of the synagogue feigned or felt indignation. He resented the innovation. In tended to eclipse his perfunctory reading of the law and prophets. It diminished his own prestige. It was far too immediate and practical. Jesus' answer is unanswerable: "You loose a beast to quench his temporary thirst on the Sabbath. Shall not I loose a human being from a permanent infirmity?" The mutterings of the self-centered ecclesiastic are drowned in the people's praises. As if to show that healing should not be confined to the Church, Jesus transferred the scene of his curative activity to a certain home. It was a Sunday banquet at the residence of a Pharisee. In this instance the subject is a man; the disease dropsy. The argument is the same. "If you dig an animal out of a pit on the Sabbath (and you do), shall not I raise up a human being from infirmity on the Sabbath?" The alternative which Jesus always proposed on such occasions never failed to put his reasons to rout. "Which accords better with the spirit of the Sabbath—to do good, as I propose, or to do evil, as you do when you entertain an unmerciful spirit—to save life as I do, or to kill as you do when you harbor the spirit of murder in your hearts?"

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

Jesus was a Church-goer. He is spoken of as going either to synagogue or temple thirty-eight times in the Gospels. Strict Sabbath observance had phenomenal growth during the exile. Sacrifice was impossible, and so Sabbath was substituted. The rite as one pleasing to God is to be observed without reference to its effect upon the man. It is the latter which Jesus emphasizes when he affirms the Sabbath made for man. Technism of piety reached the limit under the hair-splitting genius of the Pharisees. They enumerated 365 prohibitions, 243 commands (equal to the number of bones in the body), 613 precepts (number of letters in the Decalogue). Dialectical skill was especially busy framing the casuistry of the Sabbath. There was a serious side as well as ludicrous in this excessive legalism. Jewish pilots dropped the helm on approach of Sabbath and Jewish soldiers allowed themselves to be butchered rather than fight on the Sabbath. Jesus crushed these hollow traditions, showing how the very intent of the day was perverted by them. He did not abolish the day. His title, "Lord of the Sabbath," would have had no honor in it if the Sabbath was a repealed institution. He was Lord of the Day, in an additional sense, when he rid it of the barnacles of tradition, elevated it and filled it with new meaning and sanctity.

Analysis and Key.
Sabbath "bloody angle" of contest. An idolized Sabbath, a juggernaut. Jesus takes issue with its Technism. Seven cures in seven Sabbaths. Examples: Woman with Infirmity; Man with Dropsy. Answer to Critics. Mercy to Beast vs. Mercy to Human Being. Better to do Good than Evil. Answer Unanswerable. The Young People's Devotional Service. March 15, 1914. 1 Corinthians 15: 1-10. WELL-STORED MEMORIES. (A Memory Meeting.) The test of a good sermon is that it is worth remembering. Its justification is not that it presents truth otherwise unobtainable but that it presents it in a persuasive and convincing manner. By such a test St. Paul was an ideal sermonizer, and he gives here an epitome of all his preaching.

AND HE DID

How to "Eat" the Word of God

By REV. JAMES M. CRAY, D. D.
Dean of Moody Bible Institute
Chicago

There is a great difference between "finding" the word of God and "eating" it, and it is the man who eats it that gets the benefit out of it. Eating makes digestion and assimilation possible, and when these functions are normal in their working, the result is health, and strength, and all the usefulness and joy of living. But eating comes first, and the eating that counts is that which has taken plenty of time for mastication. You must retain the food in your mouth, and get the full taste of it, and let it mingle well with the saliva, and chew, and chew, and chew, until the least possible amount is left to swallow. The man who does this has learned one of the great secrets of his physical being. He has learned how to keep well, and how to eat almost anything he likes without ill results. Keeping the food in the mouth is the key to it all. Something like this is true in the higher realm. Usefulness and joy in the spiritual life depend on spiritual health and strength. But these in turn depend on the spiritual nourishment one takes—its kind, its quantity, its condition. The only nourishment for man's soul is the word of God. "Desire the sincere milk of the word that ye may grow thereby," is the inspired exhortation (1 Peter 2:3), and the more you get of it the better, always provided that you can digest and assimilate it. Here comes the thought of eating again. Holding the word in your mind is like holding the food in your mouth. That is how to get the full taste of it. Prayer does in the one case what the saliva does in the other. Turning it round and round, thinking of it from this point of view and that, asking questions about it, taking it to your parents, your Sunday school teacher, your pastor, searching its meaning in a commentary, all these things correspond to the chewing that makes good digestion and assimilation. What I Got One Day. The other morning at family prayers I read this verse in Proverbs 18: 10. "The name of the Lord is a strong tower: the righteous runneth into it, and is safe." I at once fastened it correctly in my mind, and as I walked down-town to my office, I kept "eating" it, turning it over and over, and getting such a sweet taste out of it and such a sense of strength and spiritual satisfaction. "The name of the Lord," said I, "why that means the Lord himself! He is a strong tower." And the "strong tower?" In olden times that was a place of defense and protection like our forts today. "The righteous runneth into it." Who can the righteous be, save those who are made righteous through receiving Christ by faith as their righteousness? "Runneth," there is the thought of haste because of pursuit by an enemy, and Paul's word came into my mind, "We wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." "Runneth into it and is safe." O, the security and peace of the believer who puts his trust in God! But that was not all. Before the day was over I needed all the strength I got out of it. There were trials that day, the enemy was on my heels, and how glad I was to run, and to know the place to run to and be safe! What the Prophet Meant. I think this is what the prophet meant when he said: "Thy words were found, and I did eat them; and thy word was unto me the joy and rejoicing of my heart." And this is why I urge every Christian to memorize a portion of the word of God every day. It gives his soul something to feed upon, and the more he feeds upon, and digests and assimilates it, the greater is his spiritual strength, and joy, and power, and fruitfulness in the Lord. Let me illustrate this. The next day after my experience with Proverbs 18: 10 I was at a prayer meeting, and being suddenly called upon to give a word of exhortation, I had an opportunity to pass on that verse to three or four hundred other people. And to how many more will they pass it on? They were all bible students preparing for Christian work in the uttermost part of the earth. Can you compute the number of souls to whom they may pass it on in a lifetime, and who, in turn, may pass it on, and on and on while the age lasts? And all because of that one little bite of truth I got that morning, and because I held it long enough to chew it well! Memorize the bible if you want to be blessed and become a blessing. If you are looking for help of any kind, read the Want Ads.

On the Spur of the Moment

My Sweetheart. Her cheek 'is like the blushing rose; Her starlike eyes are fair to see; Her swan-like neck and Grecian nose Have surely made a hit with me. She has two shell-like ears, so cute, And hair that's like a golden sheaf. When I'm near her, I'm stricken mute, Her beauty's quite beyond belief. She never seems to move an eye Or make e'en one coquettish sign When other men are passing by. And so I guess that she's all mine. She always wears the same glad smile Whenever I gaze upon her face. She's of the kind that's well worth while. I simply marvel at her grace. I'd like to warm up to that girl, That is a way I've often felt, But if I did I'd be a churl. For I am sure that she would melt. I love that lady, if you please, My heart is won as ne'er before. But it's a hopeless case, for she's A wax girl in a dry goods store.

Musings of a Pessimist. When a woman gets hold of an automobile in a crowded street, it is time for pedestrians to take to the woods. The old home cooking always seemed good because you were always hungry. It would serve every sour old bachelor right if he had to marry a sour old maid and vice versa. There are too many young kids running automobiles and not enough of them working for a living. For all around knowledge, nobody has got anything on the hotel clerk in a town of 1,200. The new woman will never get very far without the old man.

Signs of the Times. Mrs. Lucy Mustard of Idaho asks a divorce from William, her husband. Another case of "Too Much Mustard." It seems as though his name should really be General Villain. Sam writes in the Saturday Evening Post that he has been on the water wagon three years. Somehow or other Sam's stuff hasn't been as raucy recently as it used to be. "Secretary McAdoo dances the tango," says a Republican exchange. We have been afraid they would get something on the Democratic administration. Elbert Hubbard and John D. have been playing golf together. It is seldom that extremes in hair meet in this manner. General Huerta says there is no change in the situation. Neither is there any change in the treasury. Champ Clark should learn that nursing a grouch is no way to nurse a presidential boom. Taxi bandits are busy in Chicago again. This does not refer to the regular taxi drivers. Human nature seems to be pretty much the same the world over—excepting in Mexico. Twice has the supreme court declared the white slave law to be constitutional. Three times and perhaps the people will be convinced. Chicago man sent to jail for stealing a loaf of bread. He should have stolen a railroad or a few banks.

Congress has adopted the two-battleships a year plan for the navy, inasmuch as a good battleship lasts three or four years, there will always be found on hand. From the Hickeyville Clarion. It has been so cold the past week that Hank Tumms has had to blast his cistern with dynamite in order to get water so that his wife could take in washing. Deacon Stubbs, our esteemed fellow citizen and pillow of the Hard-shell Church, who never takes more than 20 per cent on chattel mortgages, has ordered a stained glass memorial window for the church to be erected in his honor. It will be put in before he dies as the deacon does not care to take any chances by leaving the matter to the congregation. There have been several sleigh-ride parties in our midst recently. Amos Butts, our gentlemanly and genial undertaker, has had the body of his deceased put on runners and, with an oil stove inside, it makes a splendid vehicle for sleighride parties, being in demand nearly every evening. Another Exciting Game. Friend—"What were your sensations in the wreck?" Victim—"Just the same as in football. Three coaches passed over me and then the doctors came."

May Pink. May Pink's a Goop I can't forgive, For she is so in-quis-i-tive: (Which means she loves to listen to The things she has no business to.) She's always trying to find out What folks are gossiping about. Don't Be A Goop!

In trying to get to the top don't depend too much on the elevator. Some people come to grief and others wait for it to catch them. IF ANYTHING PULLED OFF, I DON'T WANT TO MISS IT!

MARCH 20 Look out for an unlucky Friday. If this is your birthday you will have a quiet year. New undertakings seem unfavorable. Shunting Him On. "By the way, old chap, I need a little money." "You may consider yourself fortunate. I need a whole lot."

Tomorrow Will Be "Orange Day"

This year California has grown the finest quality and largest crop in the history of the orange industry. To fitly celebrate the event growers have selected tomorrow (March 21st) as California Orange Day. Never have these incomparable oranges been so plentiful and so low in price.

Special Trainload, Fresh from the Orchards Here Tomorrow!

To popularize this day the 6,500 growers, comprising the California Fruit Growers Exchange, have picked the very finest fruit, and these superior oranges are now on sale at all retail stores.

Special trainloads of these golden-ripe oranges have been shipped in refrigerator cars direct from the groves to your city, that you may enjoy the orchard bouquet and flavor unimpaired.

Oranges for Health

Doctor Harvey W. Wiley, the greatest authority on pure foods and dietetics in the world says: "Eat oranges; eat them in winter, eat them in summer; they are better for you than physic."

In an interview, Dr. Wiley says: "Oranges are excellent for people. It is good to eat oranges for breakfast, and also for dinner—not from a medical, but an anti-medical standpoint.

"Both oranges and lemons ought to be used freely.

"Note that I do not say 'Eat an orange for breakfast', but rather, 'EAT ORANGES'."

FREE TO THE SICK

Dr. Franklin Milne, the Great Specialist, Will Send His Book and $2.50 Neuropathic Treatment Free.

All sick persons, especially those whom physicians have failed to cure, should not fail to write for Dr. Milne's free book on "Neuropathic-Curing Through the Brain Centers and Nervous System." It describes a great discovery by which many wonderful cures have been made after able physicians had failed.

If you have any of the following ailments, you should send postal card for Dr. Milne's New Book and Free Treatment: Weak nerves, heart, liver, stomach or kidneys; pain in the left side or shoulder, short breath, palpitation, irregular heart beats, swelling of the ankles or dropsy; headache, dizziness, drowsiness or nervousness; dyspepsia, the blues, cold hands and feet, backache or rheumatism, nervousness, sleeplessness or trembling. His Neuropathic Treatments for these diseases are the result of immense experience for 20 years and are thoroughly scientific and remarkably successful, so much so that he does not hesitate to offer free treatments to the sick that they may test them at his expense. Few physicians have such confidence in their remedies. His book contains many remarkable cures in the U. S. and many local physicians and specialists failed. It also contains endorsements from Bishops, Clergymen, Statesmen, Editors, Business men, Farmers, Etc. Write at once, describe your case, and he will send you a $2.50 Special Treatment and a new Book free. Address Dr. Milne, Great Dispensary, Dept. NK, 718 to 728 Main St., Elkhart, Ind.

CLINTON

Clinton, Wis., March 19.—Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bodin spent Sunday with relatives at Lake Geneva. The dance given at the City Hall Tuesday night was a very pleasant affair. Miss Kate Rafferty, who has been ill at the Hotel Clinton where she had been employed as cook, was removed to her sister's home, Mrs. John Conry, two and one-half miles southeast of town. The 15-year-old boy of Mr. and Mrs. John Nitz, two miles east of town, is very low with pneumonia. Lucius Hill, known by every body here as "Lut," is in a very critical condition at his home and is not expected to live but a day or two at the farthest. Venerable Charles Lee of this place, formerly of Massachusetts, spent Monday in Janesville and Beloit. A. J. Bodin went to Milwaukee Wednesday morning to attend the state convention of Rexall dealers. He will return tonight. Mrs. Ernest Frank spent Sunday at Delavan with relatives and friends. Mrs. Noble O. Tarbell of Lake Geneva arrived last evening to visit her sister, Mrs. J. J. Bodin. Miss Georgia Miner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Miner of this place, who is attending the state university and who has earned many honors in that institution, was elected vice president of the senior class, which is the highest honor her classmates can bestow upon her, as a girl never elected president. The honor came unsolicited by Miss Miner, who did not belong to any society or act as sponsor and backer, and which makes the honor all the more noteworthy. All Clinton is proud of Miss Miner, who is one of the best students from Clinton, and she has had to work her way partially, which makes her achievements all the more worthy of comment. Dwight Hamilton of Pecatonica, Ill., was visiting his brothers here. Mrs. George George is confined to her home by a severe cold.

WEST CENTER

West Center, March 19.—William Harnack and brother, Hans, drove to Beloit, Tuesday, returning the next day. Mrs. George Miller is the first in this neighborhood to have incubator chickens. E. William Nachigal has moved into William Draht's house, recently vacated by Mr. Powers. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beversdorf spent Sunday evening at the home of William Grosschlauss. Mrs. William Harnack received news Monday of the sudden death of her cousin, Mrs. William Pabst, of Beloit. Earl Goldsmith is visiting with his sister and uncle and families near Neilsville. Spring is not coming as fast as it looked. Today the thermometer registered about zero.

MILTON JUNCTION

Milton Junction, March 19.—Irving Klitzkie is numbered among the sick. The Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church will meet with Mrs. E. S. Hull, Friday afternoon. Miss Bertha Knutson is again able to be about after an illness of a few weeks. Miss Anderson, who lives near Janesville, spent yesterday with Miss Hazel Stewart. Prof. J. M. Gahagan is able to be at his school work again after a two months' vacation. Frank Carney made a business trip to Janesville yesterday.

BLAMES HIGH TAXES

TO "WISCONSIN IDEA"; PROPOSES A REMEDY

Wausau Editor Says to "Cut Out Madison Parasites and Put State on Business Basis."

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Delavan, Wis., March 20.—J. L. Sturtevant, editor of the Wausau Daily Record-Herald, spoke here last night on "High Taxes in Wisconsin and the Remedy," discussing the subject from the standpoint of the taxpayer. He said in part:

"The 'Wisconsin Idea,' as outlined by President Woodrow Wilson at the university and Professor Charles McCarthy of the legislative reference bureau, is that the people hold property only in trust for posterity, that they do not own it themselves, and that therefore every line of endeavor should be regulated, supervised and inspected by a commission; these commissions and their employees to be experts, who are to be trained in the University of Wisconsin."

"It means, if it means anything, that individuals should have no voice in the management of their affairs, that the state must stand in loco parentis to all its people."

"It means that the state university shall dominate the state and all its people; that the child shall dictate to its father. The 'Wisconsin Idea' takes no account of the right of private property. It assumes that wealth of every class, however obtained, is held in trust. It enforces a general compulsory system of benevolence, under which every man who has saved anything for himself is forced to divide his savings with the improvident."

Proposes Remedy.

"What is the remedy?" "Cut out all the parasites who are now making Madison their home. Cut out the socialists from the school of political economy, and glad to say that some of the faculty cannot well be spared. Cut out the numerous professors at the university who devote most of their time to writing books and magazine articles for their personal profit. Cut politics out of the university and so far as you can cut politics out of the state government. Cut off the useless commissions. Censure Commissions. Do away with the legislative and judicial functions of commissions. Define their duties carefully and explicitly by statute. Make them commissions in the original sense of the term. Simplify the work of the state. Cut out the legislative reference bureau, the most dangerous commission in Wisconsin. Establish a state budget that the people may know of proposed appropriations. Put the state on a business basis. How can this be done? See to it that next September and next November every man goes to the polls and votes for members of the legislature and governor who have pledged themselves to bring about these needed reforms, and then when they are elected insist upon their carrying out their pledges."

PATENTS TO INVENTORS.

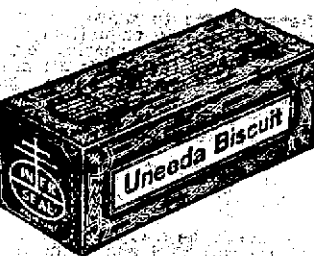

Morsell & Caldwell, solicitors of patents, Majors, 214 Milwaukee and Robinson Bldg., Racine, report patents issued to Wisconsin inventors on March 17, 1914, as follows: Franklin H. Avers, Portage, indicating device for moving picture films; Edward C. Berners, Two Rivers, bottle closure; Peter Christman, Green Bay, quadruple impulse pump; Patrick J. ELKS ARE TO ADOPT

"BIG BROTHER" IDEA

Members of the Local Lodge Will Act as Friends to Younger Boys.

Janesville Lodge, 254 B. P. O. E. will undertake to organize a "Big Brother" movement in this city, and Robert Ashley, who has been appointed chairman of the committee, has been receiving communications from the Grand Lodge relative to the work. The object of the movement is for members of the lodge to take up boys with young boys who have never had the advantages they should, and by advice and direction so guide their actions as to make them useful citizens.

The plan through which the lodge expects to carry out this work is to give the judge of the juvenile court the names of the members who are willing to work as Big Brothers. Then when a young boy comes up before the judge the boy is not sentenced nor placed on probation. He is not required to report before a probation officer, but is thrown into contact with his Big Brother, who through kindness guides his actions and shows him how to become a useful citizen. In the smaller towns where the juvenile courts do not play an important part, information regarding boys is procured through the principals of schools. An attempt is always made to place boys under the guidance of a man who professes the same religious convictions as the parent of the boy.

The local committee is made up of Robert Ashley, John Soultman and John Lynch, who will make preparations for getting all of the active Elks in touch with the work. The advice of an older man, right at this time when there is so much discussion of conditions among the younger boys of the city is a good thing to institute such a movement. The work has been suggested from New York to San Francisco, and although it is not entirely an original idea with the Elks, the idea of adopting it as an order is original. The Grand Lodge has already praised the work that has already been done, and has great hopes for the work that it will do in the future.

CLASS PRESENT DRAMA "DOWN IN DIXIE"

"Sharon, March 18.—Last Friday evening members of the Sharon high school presented the war drama 'Down in Dixie,' which proved to be a success in every way. All of the characters knew their parts well and held the attention of a full house for about two and one-half hours. About one hundred dollars were realized, which will benefit the base ball team. Miss Minnie Bollman of Harvard was down to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Engelhardt, north-east of town. Mr. and Mrs. Harley Williams and daughter and William Wankert spent a few days with Mrs. Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Wankert. Miss Belle Knaub went to Harvard Monday for a few days' visit with relatives. James Skall, who has been suffering with abscess of the liver, was taken to Mercy Hospital, Janesville, last week, where his case was placed under observation with view of operating later. Harold Salisbury is now employed as clerk in the local postoffice. Ed Klein, who has been employed there for some time, has been seriously ill for some time, is gaining slowly. The Sharon Telephone Company has just finished putting up their telephone lines. They installed the phone at P. O. Kuehn's and Geo. Ramboldt's Saturday.

NEW GLARUS

New Glarus, March 19.—Miss Edith Thieler, from Monroe, visited over Sunday with her parents and friends. Mrs. and Mrs. Paul Aultman of Monticello spent Sunday here with relatives and friends. Emil Kaiser is spending a few days in Chicago transacting business. Mrs. Henry Duerst and daughter, Marie Geiger, spent Tuesday in Janesville. Selmar Helgesen of Monroe is here helping John Legler. Mrs. Gottlieb Sengacher of Brodhead spent a day here visiting with her sick grandparents. Mrs. Dr. Hosely left Wednesday morning for Madison, where she went to see a sick little girl, Lona Priest, Henry B. Hosely left Wednesday morning for Rockford. J. J. Figi and Casper Zwickey spent Saturday in Milwaukee transacting business. Gottfried Meier of Evansville spent Friday here on a visit. Emil Tschudy and J. B. Wiber left Tuesday for Fond du Lac for a week's visit. Albert Schlatter spent Saturday in Janesville transacting business.

Old People Need A Bowel Stimulant

The Ideal One is a Mild Laxative-Tonic that Will Keep the Bowels Gently Active.

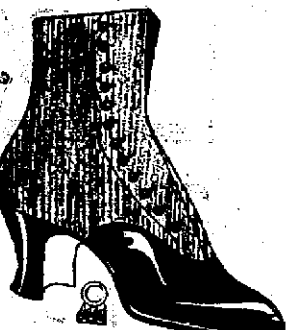

MRS. MARY A. P. DAVIDSON.

Healthy old age is so absolutely dependent upon the condition of the bowels that great care should be taken to see that they act regularly. The fact is that as age advances the stomach muscles become weak and inactive and the liver does not store up the juices that are necessary to prompt digestion. Some help can be obtained by eating easily digested foods and by plenty of exercise, but this latter is irksome to most elderly people. One thing is certain, that a state of constipation should always be avoided, as it is dangerous to life and health. The best plan is to take a mild laxative as often as is deemed necessary. But with equal certainty it is suggested that cathartics, purgatives, physics, salts and pills be avoided, as they do but temporary good and are so harsh as to be a shock to a delicate system. A much better plan and one that thousands of elderly people are following is to take a gentle laxative-tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which acts as nearly like nature as is possible. In fact, the tendency of this remedy is to strengthen the stomach and bowel muscles and so train them to act naturally again, when medicines of all kinds can usually be dispensed with. This is the opinion of many people of different ages, among them Mrs. Mary A. P. Davidson, of University Mound Home, San Francisco, Cal. She is 78 and because of her sedentary habits had a continual bowel trouble. From the day she began taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin she has had no further inconvenience and naturally she is glad to say kind things of this remedy. A bottle can be bought of any druggist at fifty cents or one dollar. People usually buy the fifty cent size first, and then, having convinced themselves of its merits, they buy the dollar size, which is more economical. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded. Elderly persons of both sexes can follow these suggestions with every assurance of good results. Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

AFTER SICKNESS OR OPERATION

It is a pathetic mistake to accept drugs or alcoholic mixtures when nature craves nourishment to repair the wasted body and restore the vigor of health.

For forty years the best physicians have relied on the wholesome predigested nourishment in SCOTT'S EMULSION which is totally free from alcohol or opiates. Scott's Emulsion sharpens the appetite—renews blood—nourishes nerves—strengthens bones and restores the courage of health to make life bright.

Scott's Emulsion sets in action the very forces that promote health. Its purity, richness and strength has stood the test of forty years.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE INTOLERANCE OF TOLERANCE.

SOME of my young friends. "There are times when, if she were not so much older than I, I should tell her just what I think of her and her narrow views. She has no sympathy with people who think differently from her. I do hate intolerance."

I wonder how many of us are just like my young friend—possessed of a hatred of intolerance in somebody else.

The tolerant person is the person who "puts up" with everything and everybody. He has his own views, but he allows others the same privilege.

The so-called, or perhaps I should say self-called tolerant person, is more often the person who is intolerant of somebody else's intolerance.

The Puritans, resenting the lack of religious tolerance in England fled to America. In their homes one might have expected to find religious tolerance. But there was none. The Puritans, seeking religious tolerance for themselves, were, for their part, as intolerant of others as their own persecutors had been.

The moment we actively resent or actively attempt to remove anybody else's "intolerance," we are simply letting ourselves become intolerant in turn. We attempt to impress our views on them, which is in itself the very essence of intolerance.

It is true, of course, that there are times when one must be intolerant for one's own good. A community, for instance, that became too tolerant of political abuse, would be overrun by grasping and corrupt executives.

We should be intolerant of injustice, of deceit, of lying and of many things where it is universally agreed intolerance is wise.

But where we need tolerance—real tolerance—is where there is ground for an honest difference of opinion. That you, of your generation perhaps, have no use for the "old-fashioned" views of your elders, does not necessarily brand their views as wrong. Your intolerance of your "newfangled" views makes them right.

And if you feel inclined to criticize intolerance, first ask yourself if there is any intolerance on your part in doing so.

LATE FASHION DRESS SHOWS MANISH STYLE

Coat Suits Have Swagger—Fashion Decreases Nuptial Band and of Platinum for 1914 Brides.

(By Margaret Mason.)
(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

New York, March 26.—In spite of the fussy femininity of frills, puffs and ruffles so prevalent on all the silk and lingerie frocks and even on the suits of moire, taffeta and serge the leaning toward masculine accessories is becoming more and more marked.

No coat suit is complete or smart these days without its swagger white waistcoat of pique or linen with a flaring collar attached. Of course all of the waistcoats are not of washable materials but those that are promise to have the sanction of popularity.

More and more you see the walking stick, slightly longer than its masculine prototype, being taken in girlish and matronly hands. Indeed at many of the dancings you see some of the most modishly gotten up of the fashionable dancers tripping the light fantastic and tripping literally thus encumbered.

You have long applied the adjectives modest and shrinking to the sky violet but the modern violet shade, now affected so universally by the "old belle," is as violent and blatant and unshrinking as a guaranteed dye will make it. There is a great run on all the shades from royal purple to tender lavender with the fruity effects or grape prune and plum to boot.

While it has not yet quite vanished from sight the slit in the skirt of the moment is gradually fading into a passe stage. The latest skirt is the bustled one pulled up shorter by which was formerly granted by the most modishly gotten up of the fashionable dancers tripping the light fantastic and tripping literally thus encumbered.

Nothing seems safe from the fickle fingers of fashion. Now it's the wedding ring that is having the changes change of style to its width as heretofore fashion has decreed that the no longer the chic material. Hence the nuptial band of platinum will fashionable 1914 brides if the bridegroom knows what's what.

The tiny little summer coats and wraps for wear over the lacey film of lingerie frocks are almost too adorable to be adequately described in cold words.

They are as limp and slinky as rags but they are royal rags indeed. The most delectable ones are built of gayly dyed and flowered silk crepe and lined with a contrasting shade of chiffon. They are all reversible when worn with the chiffon side out the flowered glories of the crepe glow through seductively. One exquisite crepe of old gold patterned in white, pink and blue blossoms is shrouded in a loose puff around the neck and kimono sleeves and hangs like a little loose sack to the waist line where it is again finished with a shirred puffing.

It is lined in old blue chiffon. Two woman-like wraps, one of shimmering silver grey, the other of peach blow are fashioned from that alluring fabric called peau de peche which in common or garden American means peach skin. Needless to mention these airy little wrap trifles are worth more than their weight in gold. The chiffon and crepe ones actually weigh not more than a bit of down while their price ranges from thirty to fifty dollars.

Given a length of chiffon and flowered crepe, however, and she is a stupid feminine who cannot fashion for herself a Parisian creation that defies detection.

Since it is now a case of "The tango is dead long live the Maxixe" the erstwhile tango frock has been christened up to date by the name of "cing-on sept." Translated this reads "five to seven" meaning those golden two hours sacred to tea and toes.

Dead Mrs. Thompson: (1) Please give me a mild recipe for wrinkles on forehead.

(2) Please tell me a harmless remedy to dye gray hair to restore same to natural color. Will black coffee be beneficial?

(3) Make up your mind, in the first place, to stop raising your brows and stop frowning. These things make wrinkles. Each time after you wash the face, massage the wrinkles, with a circular motion, using cold cream or cocoa butter. This will not eradicate them entirely, but in time will make the wrinkles less noticeable.

(4) There is no way to restore gray hair to its natural color. I do not think black coffee will do the trick. You might get a walnut hair stain, which, with care, the hair may be bought ready put up, or you may make it as follows: Four ounces walnut skins; beat to a pulp and add sixteen ounces pure alcohol. Let this stand eight days, then strain. Apply to the hair with a small brush. Be careful not to stain your hands.

Victimized.
"Did you come back on an all-steel train?" "When the waiters and porters finished plucking me I felt sure that it was."

Women Worth White

MRS. THOMAS SCULLY

By Selene Armstrong Harmon. "My friends say that I am an old-fashioned caller. I think I am, too," said Mrs. Thomas J. Scully wife of the representative from South Albany, New Jersey, for I like to sit a while and have a little chat. To rush into a person's house and say how-do-you-do and good-by in one breath is not in my line. For this reason I am not totally in sympathy with the new movement afoot in Washington to substitute a mere exchange of visiting cards for personal calls between congressional wives and their acquaintances.

"When a new member and his wife come to Washington, obviously they are comparatively strangers and the first thing they must do is get acquainted that is if the wife wants to be happy and the husband popular."

"The opportunity to meet people in their homes is the only way I can see that is provided for ripening hurried made acquaintances into lasting friendships. It is not a matter of policy alone. To many interesting people reside in the capital of the life one of the bright spots of the life here that we are afforded a means of meeting them."

"After all, congressional life is not the important thing so many people are inclined to make of it. Our husbands do a great work in congress and we help their careers in a social way, but after all we are small fry and our duties are not great enough to exaggerate into burdens."

"I love to entertain. I am passionately fond of politics. I mention these two things together because they are naturally related in the mind of any woman who has gone through a political campaign. I love to keep open house for my husband's friends and helpers, rich or poor, and to make myself personally known to all of them. I know as much about the political status of the men of the community as my husband does."

"I think I am a good mixer. I am not egotistical when I say that, but almost every one can do one thing exceptionally well. Some can do such wonderful things. I can only make people feel at home, but I am proud enough of that one quality to mention it as my accomplishment."

At Deal Beach, near Ashbury Park, on the Jersey shore, Mrs. Scully has a beautiful summer home. It is a large stucco house with immense wide porches on all sides. The inside rooms open into one so that when the rugs are taken up the entire first floor is a perfect ball room. Here Mrs. Scully says she allows her friends to dance to their hearts' content. She too, does the new dances, but only in moderation.

"Motoring along the delightful Jersey shore roads is Mrs. Scully's favorite recreation. She does not run a car herself. In fact, she feels that with her husband, a son and a chauffeur, there is no need for her even to learn. She is a tall and dark brunette, with a well developed taste for becoming gowns. She is undoubtedly one of the most fashionably dressed women in the congressional set."

The Scullys have two children, a boy, John, in his freshman year at Princeton and a little girl of four, Frances, living with her mother and father in Washington.

EVERYDAY TALKS FOR EVERYDAY PEOPLE BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

A man and woman, the parents of six growing children, who had just about all they could well attend to in the procuring for their family the necessities of life and in keeping up the payments on their home had one little boy, who was most musically inclined. The mother was strongly in favor of getting a piano for the little chap, for all the children, but the father was reluctant to do so. "Till things looked brighter," he said.

Now this particular woman ruled her own home, but her husband thought he did. As this knowledge made him very happy and did no one any harm he lived serene in the idea that his word was law in everything. Consequently, when he said there would be no piano in the home, at present he had not the faintest suspicion of a doubt, but what that ended it for the present at least.

The mother made several trips to town. As this was something unusual for her to do, father inquired the cause. He was answered in a way that while it told him everything, still it left him in doubt. As he was a good scout, he knew enough not to be too curious. One evening as he drew near his home at the close of day he was surprised to hear the unmistakable sounds of a piano issuing from his home.

Perplexed, he entered the door to find his wife and all the family grouped around a piano that mother had that day purchased on the installment plan. At first he was inclined to be a bit angry. You see he felt his foundation tottering under him. He had always been of the opinion that nothing of any import could be pulled off in the family circle without consulting him. As he often exercised what you might call "The divine right of kings," with about as much judgment as the kings of old used, the family could not really be blamed for springing a surprise on father.

He gloomily prophesied that they could never pay for the instrument, that it would be impossible to have any of the children take lessons, that it was a bad piece of business from start to finish. That was seven years ago. They did not lose the piano, the children did take lessons, and the little chap who the piano was really bought for, is progressing rapidly in the study of music. The other children also play well, but he is the leader of them all.

"At first," said the mother, "I thought I probably had done wrong in bringing the piano into our home in such a way. Still, I felt certain that if John realized all it meant to the children and I he would be willing to let us have it. Happily, John did not seriously object to her plan of action. They paid for it by a little less spending along other different small lines. By fewer new clothes, and a more economical way of living in things that would not in any way lessen the efficiency of the family."

Did that woman do right? Would you do as she did? And did not the end justify the means?

Large Family. Fellow Guest (who has just told humorous artist an appalling chestnut)—"Aw—Thought you might illustrate it, you know. It happened to my father!" Artist—"Many thanks; but what makes it even more interesting is that I must have met twenty or thirty of your brothers!"—Punch.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. When tortoise-shell combs, pins and other objects of the same material become dull, clean them with a little olive oil or vaseline. This will restore their beauty and they become less brittle.

When cutting hard-boiled eggs it is a good idea to dip the knife in cold water. They will cut more smoothly.

When removing cake baked in the pans place a wet cloth over the inverted pan and the cake will drop out nicely, never sticking to the pan. If a burn is covered immediately with baking soda and kept damp with a cold cloth, there will be no blister.

THE TABLE. Creamed Salt Codfish—Pick the salt codfish pieces (there should be three-fourths of a cup), and soak in lukewarm water, the time depending upon the hardness and saltiness of the fish. Drain, and add one cup of White sauce. Add one beaten egg just before sending to the table. Garnish with slices of hard-boiled eggs.

Hot Cross Buns—One cup of sugar, two tablespoonsful of butter, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half yeast cake dissolved in one-fourth cup of lukewarm water, three cups of flour, one egg, one-fourth cup of raisins stoned and quartered, or one-fourth cup of currants.

Add the butter, sugar, and salt to the milk; when lukewarm, add the dissolved yeast cake, cinnamon, flour, and egg well beaten; when thoroughly mixed, add the raisins, cover, and let rise over night. In the morning, shape in forms of large biscuits, place in a pan one inch apart, let rise, brush over with beaten egg, and bake twenty minutes; add a cross on the top of each bun.

A New Method of Baking Cakes

Mrs. Nevada Briggs, the baking expert, says:

"There is just one way to make your cakes rise high and evenly—give them time to rise before a crust is formed and the batter is stiffened by cooking."

"If using a gas, gasoline or oil stove, light your oven when you put the cake in and keep the flame low until the cake has doubled in bulk; then increase the heat until it is evenly browned and will respond to the pressure of the finger. If using a coal or wood range, leave the oven door open until the cake is in; then turn on the drafts and by the time the oven is at baking temperature, the cake will have raised sufficiently."

For rich, moist, feathery cakes Mrs. Briggs always recommends

KC BAKING POWDER

It is double acting and sustains the raise. You can open and close the oven door, turn the tin around in the oven or do anything else necessary, without any danger of making the cake fall.

Try your favorite cake next time with K C Baking Powder and see how much higher it will rise. Make it just as you always do, with the same quantity of baking powder. While K C is less expensive than the old fashioned baking powders, it has even greater leavening strength and it is guaranteed pure and healthful.

STATE COMPENSATION LAWS A SUCCESS IN CALIFORNIA.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
San Francisco, March 20.—The State compensation, insurance and safety act, effective since January 1, is working out satisfactory. Both employers and employees are agreed that "it is one of the best legislative acts enacted by the Johnson Administration." Under its provisions all wage earners, except those engaged in agricultural and kindred pursuits and in household service, are entitled to a percentage of their wages if disabled while on duty. If an employee is killed his dependents are entitled to a death benefit. In addition the employer must supply unlimited medical attendance for 90 days after an accident and pay life pensions to those permanently and seriously hurt.

WHAT JULIE DISCOVERED

By HARRY LE CLAIR.

Young Mrs. Holt was in bad humor as she walked down the street. Every little while she had to take out her handkerchief to wipe away the stupid tears that filled her eyes.

How could Richard ever have the heart to talk to her as he had done? They had been married only a year, and now he already behaved as if he were the master and she his slave. She had never thought that they would be unkind to one another, but of course she would not remain silent when he came home from the office in bad humor, so her replies were sharp and biting.

Again she wiped the tears away, for coming toward her at the next corner she saw her late mother's friend, her own godmother, Mrs. Berner.

"Come home and have a cup of coffee," she said. "Mary has just baked some cakes."

"Oh, I am so unhappy! Richard does not love me any more!"

"What do you say? Doesn't he love you any more?"

"No, I am sure he doesn't, or he would not talk to me as he does." And she told about several of their latest quarrels.

"But are you quite sure that you are not to blame a little yourself?"

"I know I am not," said Julie with determination, "but of course I cannot always be gay and jolly when he sulks and is unreasonable. There will be no happiness for me in life any more."

"Now, that is nonsense, my dear. I am sure your husband loves you as much as ever, but you are ruining your own happiness quarreling over trifles."

"But what do you want me to do?"

"I will help you, dear," said Mrs. Berner. "I will send you a talisman."

"A talisman?"

"Yes, here it is," said Mrs. Berner, and handed Julie an old-fashioned bracelet.

"What do you mean when you say it is a talisman?"

"I will tell you. When I had been married about a year, I too imagined that my husband did not love me because we sometimes quarreled. Then my mother gave me this bracelet and told me to wear it always."

Julie thanked her very much, but put no faith in the bracelet.

When Richard came home for dinner he had unfortunately brought a friend and as the dinner was rather spoiled, his humor was not the best when he was alone with his wife afterward.

"It was disgraceful to offer Miller a dinner like the one you served to-night," he said angrily.

"I am very sorry, Dick, but I shall be very careful not to let it happen again."

One morning, a few days later when Julie entered the dressing room she found her husband standing at the closet looking very much annoyed.

"You have not had my gray suit sent to the tailor to be pressed," he growled. "Why have you not done so?"

"Because I am not your slave?" Julie was about to answer, but again she remembered the bracelet and also that Richard had several times asked her to send out the suit, but she had thoughtlessly forgotten it.

"Do not be angry, Dick, dear," she said. "I know it is a shame that I have forgotten it, but I shall send it to the tailor today."

Richard again looked at her, greatly surprised, but she pretended not to notice it.

"Well, it really does not matter so very much, dear. Today will do just as well."

A week later Julie visited her godmother. She looked as happy as during her honeymoon and Mrs. Berner told her so.

"Well, godmother, I do feel as if I were having a second honeymoon. I know that Dick loves me as much as he ever did."

"And how did you discover that?"

"It was the talisman you gave me." "Then it has brought you luck?"

"Indeed it has. I have brought it back, as I do not need it any more."

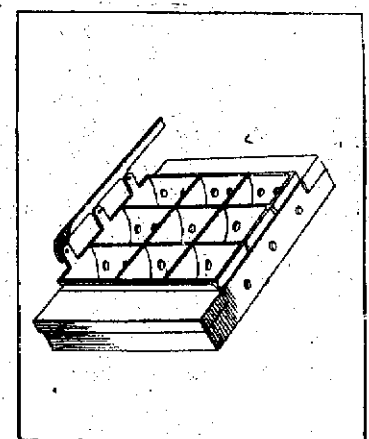

"Are you quite sure?"

"Quite. I have discovered its secret." Julie laughed. "One of my own bracelets will do just as well, now that I know the truth of the old words: 'A soft answer turneth away wrath,' but I thank you all the same, for it was really your talisman that brought me happiness."

URNS THE INCUBATOR EGGS

A Dozen or More Rolled Over at a Single Operation.

One of the many little tasks which must be looked after with more or less regularity in the hatching of chickens in the incubator, is the turning over of the eggs and upon this depends the great measure the success of the hatching. The eggs must be turned over regularly, carefully and with great consideration for the feelings of the chick which may or may not be inside. If the operation is insufficiently done it is just as disastrous if when it is overdone, it must be done just right. If the operator is in undue haste the chances are that a whole batch of prospective chicks will show their resentment of the harsh treatment by dying in the shell.

A recent invention provides for the performance of this operation in the most approved manner. The eggs all repose in small semi-circular compartments arranged in rows, each row being capable of an oscillating movement so that one turn of a lever at the side of the tray gives all the eggs of the tray a half turn, which is just the required amount of rocking demanded by the little chick in its natural cradle.

Worth Knowing.

The more recent discussions as to the earth's age have placed the time as follows: Lord Kelvin, in 1862, 20,000,000 to 400,000,000 years, with a probable 98,000,000; in 1897 Lord Kelvin revised his figures to 20,000,000 to 40,000,000 years; Clarence King and Carl Varus, in 1893, 24,000,000 years; De Laparent, in 1890, 67,000,000 to 90,000,000 years; Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian institution, in 1893, maximum age, 70,000,000 years.

Growth of Eucalyptus.

In a period of ten years the Eucalyptus tree will grow 12 inches in diameter and 80 feet in height, while it will take white oak and hickory 90 to 100 years to attain the same growth, and other hardwoods, such as walnut, will take 50 to 60 years to attain the same size; this in itself is a tremendous advantage, and together with the fact that it reproduces itself from the same stump, makes it of special commercial value.

Miss Nona McAdoo.

Washington society gossips are saying that the announcement of the engagement of W. G. McAdoo and Eleanor Wilson would have been made weeks ago, had it not been for the strenuous opposition of Secretary McAdoo's oldest unmarried daughter, Nona. Miss Wilson, it is said, declared she would not give her consent until McAdoo's daughter had, so he had to win two women.

MOTHER! THE CHILD IS COSTIVE, BILIOUS

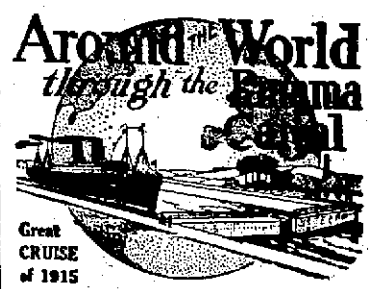

Don't hesitate! A laxative is necessary if tongue is coated, breath bad or stomach sour.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a teaspoonful today often saves a sick child tomorrow.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that it's little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a tea-spoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without gripping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle. Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!

Recommend to Sufferers the Best Stomach Remedy in Janesville Today.

"It is a wonder some of us have stomach-ache and indigestion. Well-known drug clerk recently. 'While all drug stores sell a score or more of stomach remedies for which there is no real demand, most of them are just poison pills which digest the food that is in the stomach at the time. They have no curative or strengthening effect on the stomach at all, and of course do not reach or cure the cause. So the same people keep on coming here and buying and using them until they are real chronic dyspeptics. When anyone really asks my advice I swear by and recommend ordinary blistered magnesia, which doesn't digest the food at all but just acts as an antacid and sweetens the sour, fermenting contents of the stomach. That stops the pain, heartburn, sour rising, wind, bloating, flatulence, etc., in just a few minutes, and the stomach digests its food without help or trouble, which is the proper way.'"

"Doctors make mistakes sometimes, too," he continued. "My own aunt had all kinds of trouble with her stomach for years. She bought and used several styles of digestive pills but got worse right along, as naturally she would. Finally she went to a doctor, who nearly scared her to death by telling her she had cancer of the stomach. She came to me with this prescription and told me what he said. I thought it was nonsense. I sent her to another doctor whom I knew very well and he didn't tell her anything but just gave her this same thing. She never had any stomach trouble since and that's three years ago. She's my own aunt and I know this for a fact. Blistered magnesia is sold in Janesville. All the druggists have it. I suppose, and all you take is a teaspoonful after every meal. It's all right."

TELEPHONE ACHIEVEMENTS

TELEPHONE SERVICE OF TO-DAY THE CREATION OF THE BELL CO.

In no line of human endeavor has the inventive brain of the scientist contributed more to the world's progress than by the creation of the art of telephony, of which the Bell system is the embodiment.

When the telephone was born, nothing analogous to telephone service as we now know it existed. There was no tradition to guide, no experience to follow.

The system, the apparatus, the methods—an entire new art had to be created. The art of electrical engineering did not exist. The Bell pioneers, recognizing that success depended upon the highest engineering and technical skill at once organized an experimental and research department which is now directed by a staff of over 550 engineers and scientists, including former professors, post-graduate students, scientific investigators—the graduates of over 70 universities.

From its foundation the company has continuously developed the art. New improvements in telephones, switchboards, lines, cables, have followed one another with remarkable rapidity.

While each successive type of apparatus to the superficial observer suggested similarity, each step in the evolution marked a decided improvement. These changes, this evolution, has not only been continuous, but is continuing. Substantially all of the plant now in use, including telephones, switchboards, cables and wires, has been constructed, renewed or reconstructed in the past 10 years.

Particularly in switchboards have the changes been so radical that installations costing in the aggregate millions have frequently been discarded after only a few years of use. Since 1877 there have been introduced 53 types and styles of receivers and 72 types and styles of transmitters. Of the 12,000,000 telephone receivers and transmitters owned by the Bell Company January 1, 1914, none were in use prior to 1905, while the average age is less than five years.

Within 10 years we have expended for construction and reconstruction an amount more than equal to the present book value of our entire plant.

Long-distance and underground transmission was the most formidable scientific problem confronting the telephone experts.

The retarding effect of the earth on the telephone current often impaired conversation through one mile underground as much as through 100 miles overhead. Overhead conversation had its distinct limitations.

No possible improvement in the telephone transmitter could of itself solve these difficulties.

The solution was only found in the cumulative effect of improvements, great and small, in telephone, transmitter, line, cable, switchboard, and every other piece of apparatus or plant required in the transmission of speech.

While the limit of commercial overhead talking had increased from strictly local to over 1,000 miles as early as 1893, it was not until 1905 that conversation could be had over long-distance circuits, of which as much as 20 miles was in underground cables. By 1906 underground talking distance had increased to 90 miles. By 1912 it was possible to talk underground from New York to Washington.

It was then that the construction of underground conduits from Boston to Washington was determined upon—not that it was expected to get a through underground talk between those places, but in case of storm or blizzard, to utilize the intermediate sections in connection with the overhead.

Our persistent study and incessant experimentation have produced results more remarkable still.

We have perfected cables, apparatus and methods that have overcome obstacles heretofore regarded as insuperable both to long-distance overhead and underground conversation.

Underground conversation is now possible between Boston and Washington, four times the length of the longest European underground line. This enabled the Bell System in the recent great storm, so destructive on land and sea, to maintain communication for the public between all the principal points on the Atlantic seaboard.

Telephone communication is established between New York and Denver, is potentially possible between all points in the United States, and by 1915 will be an accomplished fact between New York and San Francisco.

In our use of methods or apparatus, we are committed to no one system. We own, control or have the right to use inventions necessary to operate any system recognized or accepted as the most efficient. The Bell System must always recognize, and in its selection of a national service, with its complex requirements, which is infinitely more exacting than local or limited service.

These achievements represent vast expenditures of money and immense concentration of effort which have been justified by results of immeasurable benefit to the public. No local company unaided could bear the financial or scientific burden of this work. Such results are possible only through a centralized general staff, avoiding wasteful duplication of effort, working out problems common to all, for the benefit of all.

The pioneers of the Bell System recognized that telephone service as they saw it, was in the broadest sense a public utility; that upon them rested a public obligation to give the best possible service at the most reasonable rates consistent with risk, investment and the continued improvement and maintenance of its property.

Without this expenditure of millions and concentration of effort, the telephone art as it exists could not have been developed.

What we have done in working out these great problems in the past should be accepted as a guarantee of what we will do in the future.

He took her hands in his. "We can fix that," said he confidently. "Sara can live with us if she feels that way about it. Our home shall be hers when she likes, and as long as she chooses. It will be open to her all the time, to come and go or to stay, just as she elects. Isn't that the way to put it?"

"I suggested something of the sort, but she wasn't very much impressed. Indeed, she appeared to be somewhat—yes, I could not have been mistaken—somewhat harsh and terrified when I spoke of it. Afterwards she was more reasonable. She thanked me and there were tears in her eyes at the time—and said she would think it over. All she asks is that I may be happy and free and untroubled all the rest of my life. This was before dinner. At dinner she appeared to be brooding over something. When we left the table she took me to her room and said that she had come to an important decision. Then she instructed Watson to find you if possible. "Gad, it's all very upsetting," he said, shaking his head.

"I think her conscience is troubling her. She hates the Wrاندalls, but I don't know why I should feel as I do about it—but I believe she wants them to know!" He stared for a moment, and then his face brightened. "And so do I, Hetty, so do I. They ought to know!" "I should feel so much easier if the whole world knew," said she earnestly. Sara heard the girl's words as she stood in the door. She came forward with a strange—almost ashamed—smile, after closing the door behind her.

"I don't agree with you, dearest, when you say that the world should know, but I have come to the conclusion that you should be tried and acquitted by a jury made up of Challis Wrاندall's own flesh and blood. The Wrандalls must know the truth."

CHAPTER XXI

The Jury of Four.

The Wrандalls sat waiting and wondering. They had been sent for and they had been waiting, much to their own surprise. Redmond Wrاندall occupied a place at the head of the library table. At his right sat his wife, Vivian, and Leslie, by direction, took seats at the side of the long table, which had been cleared of its mass of books and magazines. Lawyer Carroll was at the other end of the table, perceptibly nervous and anxious. Hetty sat a little apart from the others, a rather forlorn, detached member of the conclave. Brandon Booth, pale-faced and alert, drew up a chair alongside Carroll, facing Sara who alone remained standing, directly opposite the four Wrандalls.

Not one of the Wrандalls knew why they, as a family, were there. They had not the slightest premonition of what was to come. The Wrандalls had been routed from their comfortable fireside—for what? They were asking the question of themselves and they were waiting stonily for the answer. "It is very stuffy in here," Vivian had said with a glance at the closed doors after Sara, had successfully placed her jury in the box.

"Keep still, Viv," whispered Leslie, with a fine assumption of awe. "It's a spiritualistic meeting. You'll scare the spooks away."

It was at this juncture that Sara rose from her chair and faced them, as calmly, as complacently as if she were about to ask them to proceed to the dining-room instead of to throw a bomb into their midst that would shatter their snug serenity for all time to come. With a glance at Mr. Carroll she began, clearly, firmly and without a prefatory apology for what was to follow.

night to be my judges. I am on trial. You are about to hear the story of my unspeakable perjury. I only require of you that you hear me to the end before passing judgment."

At her words, Hetty and Booth started perceptibly; a quick glance passed between them, as if each was inquiring whether the other had caught the extraordinary words of self-indictment. A puzzled frown appeared on Hetty's brow.

"Perjury?" interposed Mr. Wrاندall. His wife's expression changed from one of bored indifference to sharp inquiry. Leslie paused in the act of lighting a cigarette.

"It is the mildest term I can command," said Sara. "I shall be as brief as possible in stating the case, Mr. Wrандall. You will be surprised to hear that I have taken it upon myself, as the wife of Challis Wrандall and, as I regard it, the one most vitally concerned if not interested in the discovery and punishment of the person who took his life—I say I have taken it upon myself to shield, protect and defend the unhappy young woman who accompanied him to Burton's inn on that night in March. She has had my constant, my personal protection for more than twenty months."

The Wrандalls leaned forward in their chairs. The match burned Leslie's fingers, and he dropped it without appearing to notice the pain. "What is this you are saying?" demanded Redmond Wrандall.

"When I left the inn that night, after seeing my husband's body in the little upstairs room, I said to myself that the one who took his life had unwittingly done me a service. He was my husband; I loved him, I adored him. To the end of my days I could have gone on loving him in spite of the cruel return he gave for my love and loyalty. I shall not attempt to tell you of the countless lapses of fidelity on his part. You would not believe me. But he always came back to me with the pitiful love he had for me, and I forgave him his transgressions. These things you know. He confessed many things to you, Mr. Wrандall. He humbled himself to me. Perhaps you will recall that I never complained to you of him. What rancor I had was always directed toward you, his family, who would see no wrong in your king but looked upon me as dirt beneath his feet. There were moments when I could have slain him with my own hands, but my heart rebelled. There were times when he said to me that I ought to kill him for the things he had done. You may not understand what I mean when I say that the girl who went to Burton's inn with him did me a service. I will not say that I considered her guiltless at the time. On the contrary, I looked upon her in quite a different way. I had no means of knowing then that she was as pure as snow and that he would have despoiled her of everything that was sweet and sacred to her. She took his life in order to save that which was dearer to her than her own life, and she was on her way to pay for her deed with her life if necessary when I came upon her and intervened."

"You—you know who she is?" said Mr. Wrандall, in a low, incredulous voice. "I have known almost from the beginning. Presently you will hear her story, from her own lips."

Involuntarily four pairs of eyes shifted. They looked blankly at Hetty Castleton. Speaking swiftly, Sara depicted the scenes and sensations experienced during that memorable motor journey to New York city.

"I could not believe that she was a vicious creature, even then. Something told me that she was a tender, gentle thing who had fallen into evil hands and had struck because she was unwell. I did not doubt that she had been my husband's mistress, but I could not destroy the conviction that somehow she had been justified in doing the thing she had done. My gravest mistake was in refusing to hear her story in all of its details. I only permitted her to acknowledge that she had killed him, no more. I did not want to hear the thing which I assumed to be true. Therein lies my deepest fault. For months and months I misjudged her in my heart, yet secretly loved her. Now I understand why I loved her. It was because she was innocent of the only crime I could lay at her feet. Now I come to the crime of which I stand self-accused. I must have been mad all these months. I have no other defense to offer. You may take it as you see, it for yourselves. I do not ask for pardon. After I deliberately had set about to shield this unhappy girl—to cheat the law, if you please—to cheat you, perhaps—I conceived the horrible thought to avenge myself for all the indignities I had sustained at the hands of you Wrандalls, and at the same time to even my account with the one woman whom I could put my finger upon as having robbed me of my husband's love. You see I put it mildly. I have hated all of you, Mrs. Wrандall, even as you have hated me. Today—how I do not feel as I did in other days toward you. I do not love you, still I do not hate you. I do not forgive you, and yet I think I have come to see things from your point of view. I can only repeat that I do not hate you as I once did."

"She paused. The Wrандalls were too deeply submerged in horror to speak. They merely stared at her as if stupefied; as breathless, as motionless as stones.

"There came a day when I observed that Leslie was attracted by the guest in my house. On that day the plan took root in my brain. "Good God!" fell from Leslie's lips. "You—you had that in mind?"

"It became a fixed, indefinable purpose, Leslie. Not that I hated you as I hated the rest, for you tried to be considerate. The one grudge I held against you was that in seeking to sustain me you defamed your own brother. You came to me with stories of his misdeeds; you said that he was a scoundrel and that you would not blame me for 'showing him up.' Do you not remember? And so my plot involved you; you were the only one through whom I could strike. There were times when I faltered. I could not bear the thought of sacrificing Hetty Castleton, nor was it easy to thoroughly appease my conscience in respect to you. Still, if I could have had my way, a few months ago, if coercion had been of any avail, you would now be the husband of your brother's slayer. Then I came to know that she was not what I had thought she was. She was honest. My bubble burst. I came out of the maze in which I had been living and saw clearly that what I had contemplated was the most atrocious."

"Atrocious?" cried Mrs. Redmond Wrандall between her set teeth. "Diabolical! Diabolical! My God, Sara, what a devil you are!" She did not complete the sentence, but sank back in her chair and stared with wide, horror-struck eyes at her rigid daughter-in-law.

Her husband, his hand shaking as if with palsy, pointed a finger at Hetty. "And so you are the one we have been hunting for all these months, Miss Castleton! You are the one we want! You who have sat at our table, you who have smiled in our faces!" "Stop, Mr. Wrандall!" commanded Sara, noting the ashen face of the girl. "Don't let the fact escape you that I am the guilty person. Don't forget

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets. These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, Ohio. All druggists.

that she owed her freedom, if not her life to me. I alone kept her from giving herself up to the law. All that has transpired since that night in March must be placed to my account. Hetty Castleton has been my prisoner. She has rebelled a thousand times and I have conquered—not by threats but by love. Do you understand? Because of her love for me, and because she believed that I loved her, she submitted. You are not to accuse her, Mr. Wrандall. Accuse me! I am on trial here. Hetty Castleton is a witness against me. If you choose to call upon her as such. If not, I shall ask her to speak in my defense. If she can do so."

"This is lunacy!" cried Mr. Wrандall, coming to his feet. "I don't care what your motives may have been. They do not make her any less a murderer. She—"

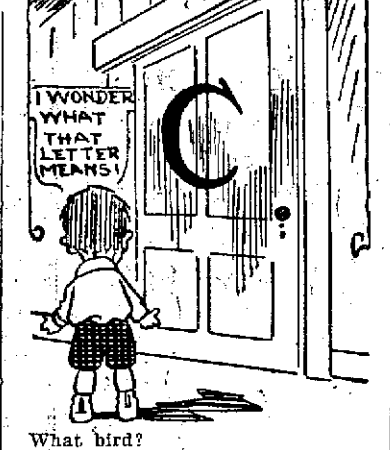

"We must give her over to the police," began his wife, struggling to her feet. She staggered. It was Booth who stepped quickly to her side to support her. Leslie was staring at Hetty.

"Good God, Vivian! Do you mean to—"

"How can we place any reliance on what she may say?" cried Mrs. Wrандall.

Dinner Stories

"Supposing I give you your supper," said the tired-looking woman, "what will you do to earn it?"

A colored man, on trial for life in a remote Tennessee town, was asked by the Judge if he had anything to say, whereupon he replied:

"All I has to say is this, Judge: If you hangs me, you hangs the best cook in Tennessee."

"I told your father I could not live without you," he exclaimed sadly. "And what did he say?" replied the dear girl.

"Oh, he offered to pay my funeral expenses."

"Why do you sign your name J. B. B. Bronson?" asked Hawkins. "Because that is my name," said Bronson. "I was christened by a

YOUTH IN OLD AGE

Possible With Proper Care.

A few generations back a man at 50 was considered old, gray-bearded, and waiting for death. Note the change today; at a meeting of the Medico-Legal society it was stated that a man at 50 ought to have forty good years ahead of him and, thus at ninety he is in the fullness of maturity.

What if you have seen sixty, or even seventy birthdays—temperate habits, fresh air and exercise, with a simple diet and a sufficient amount of sleep will guard your health.

If perchance, your circulation is poor, if you become run down—weak and no appetite nothing in the world will tone up those tired, back-sliding organs—enrich the blood and create strength so quickly as our delicious cod liver and iron tonic Vinol.

We ask every feeble, discouraged old person in this vicinity to try Vinol on our agreement to return their money if it fails to give satisfaction.

Time for a Halt.
 The governor has openly stated that taxes will never be any higher than now. Perhaps he thinks they are as high as can be reached. His promise or belief, however, can not be extended outside of his administration, and therefore must be held confined to his. Maybe he meant taxes would never be any higher during his administration. This statement there is no quarrel with, for the intention is good, to console, to calm down.

But the people of Wisconsin have it in their minds not to give a succeeding legislature or governor the chance to increase the taxes. What they are calling for is lower taxes, not that they should be no higher. If there is anything in signs and portents it reads that some essential changes are going to be made as relates to things at Madison, and it will not necessarily mean any change in political parties, for the democrats, what there are at Madison, are just as responsible as are the republicans.—Racine Journal News.

Farmers Are Aroused.
 That was a great, earnest meeting of sturdy farmers in Madison last Saturday, called together by the current belief that our state government is taking too heavy tolls out of their incomes. The men who were there cared nothing for offices, had no local axes to grind. All they wanted was an opportunity to voice their grievances, or hear them voiced by others similarly situated and similarly burdened. As the speakers, in the brief time allotted to each, unfolded the causes to present high taxes, it was evident that the state institutions most reproached is the tax commission which the speakers made plain was an entirely useless government agency. The attacks made on it were generously applauded, as were those made on the political activities of the university and the highway commission.

The farmers and home owners are mad clear through, and they have a right to be. They have no extra change to squander on high priced and useless office holders; no money to squander on governmental experimental laboratories managed by sinecure innovations, who draw big pay for devising new public utilities which need more, and more public servants. The farmer is a practical man. Theories are no good to him. Only empirical knowledge is his reliance, and only such knowledge is he willing to pay for. The farmers who attended the Madison meeting were among the most progressive in the country. They knew without being told that the tax commission was a waste of no account. The people of Wisconsin have fully made up their minds to rid the state of the fad of progressivism. This much is clearly foreshadowed in every meeting of taxpayers so far held in this state this year.—Stoughton Courier-Hub.

"PEG O' MY HEART"

ENTIRELY CHARMING

Pleasing Comedy Ably Presented at Myers Theatre Thoroughly Captivates Large Audience.

Thoroughly charming you are, Peg o' My Heart, and your whole-hearted ways, your ready wit, your gleaming Irish accent, your delightful youth captivated those who heard you and saw you at the Myers Theatre last evening. Pretty, love compelling, natural is the role of Peg as it was played by Florence Martin. From the moment she appeared on the stage as the awkward young Irish girl, her dog Michael under one arm and lugging her old-fashioned valise with the other, every person in the audience was her sympathetic friend.

The plot of the piece is simple but it is all that is necessary to draw the delightful character of Peg. She is the daughter of a loveable but imprudent father and an aristocratic mother whose relatives turned their back upon her when she set out for America with her husband. Peg is reared by her father in poverty after her mother's death. Then comes the offer of a penniless uncle, who would give Peg a chance, and the girl sets out for England. The uncle dies before she arrives and she is amply provided for by his will. She is to be cared for by her aunt's family, snobbish, aristocratic, but lately reduced to financial straits as the result of a bank failure. It is the latter adversity which compels them to accept Peg as a charge, or they love luxury and they need the money.

It may be sure that little Peg has plenty of fun at the expense of her dignified aunt, of her calm and disdaining cousin Ethel, at the expense of the conceited and useless Alaric, who has her difficult times, and she yearns for her father's love, for genuine human comradeship, for some kindred spirit which is lacking in that cold-blooded household. Snobbish, mistreated she determines to leave at the end of a month and return to her father who loves her. Such a move is well within her capability, to her aristocratic cousins who would be left with out means to supply their daily bread if she left, but when their lost fortune is rejuvenated they are quite ready to say good-bye.

Peg has made one conquest, however, in Jerry, executor of her uncle's will. Their friendship and mutual admiration ripen into love and Peg is happy.

Manners' comedy, and riot, could be said of the exceptional cast, which Oliver Morosco has provided. Isabel Vernon made a haughty and effective Mrs. Chichester; Maude Allan carried out the part of the snobbish cousin; Colin Campbell had a true appreciation of the role of Alaric; Fred Tiden read the part of Jerry in capable style; and other characters were admirably fitted for their roles.

PHILOTAHAN SOCIETY MET YESTERDAY AFTERNOON IN THEIR REGULAR SESSION

The Philotaxian Literary society held its regular weekly meeting yesterday afternoon at the high school. Following the business session, the following short and interesting program was given:

Short sketch of the "Life of Kipling"—Josephine Connors.
 Story—"The Pride of Youth"—Lucile Hutchinson.
 Story—"Thrown Away"—Marion Drummond.

Mary Reardon acted as chairman.

Fright to Be Guarded Against.
 "Perhaps it seems incomprehensible to you," says Dr. Stoddard Goodhue, in the Cosmopolitan Magazine, "that a fright experienced by your child at the age of two or three years can be instrumental in determining the complexion of mind of that child after it has come to the adult age—can, for example, give it lifelong inherent timidity, that will dominate it under given conditions, but such is the case."

LEGEND OF OJIBWAYS

By ELMER EDWARDS.

Long ago, before even Father Marquette visited the beautiful upper lake region, there was an Indian village where the little town of Harbor Springs, Mich., now stands.

In the days when Halli was chief of the village, peace and prosperity were enjoyed by the red men. To their very door Little Traverse Bay brought fish in great abundance.

Halli's only daughter, Winona, was famed throughout all that region for her beauty and goodness. From childhood her favorite among the young Ojibways had been Neoma. He was renowned as the swiftest runner and the most daring hunter of the tribe. All the people looked for Neoma to wed Winona and, when the old chief was dead, rule in his stead. It was then that trouble came to the peaceful and happy village.

A little to the east, on the bank of a beautiful stream, a wily Indian named Mochimantou came to make his home. The stranger was false-hearted, and in league with the spirits of evil. Soon he laid a spell upon the village. Halli boldly called Mochimantou to a council and when the stranger departed, the old chief emerged from his wigwam, his head bowed and his face somber.

The next day Neoma went to the chief and asked Winona's hand in marriage. "Once I am your son O Halli, we will lead the warriors against the evil one at the brook," the young brave said.

"Nay, nay, Neoma! We would be powerless against the mighty Mochimantou. There is only one way. If Winona becomes his wife he will no longer be our enemy; instead of cursing he will bless us."

It was in vain that Neoma cried out against that plan. The old chief was firm.

For three days there was much excitement in the village. On the morning of the fourth Neoma and his birch canoe were gone. That was not all; Winona had left her father's wigwam. The lovers made their way in the canoe to a small, uninhabited island far out in Lake Michigan. There the young warrior built a wigwam. From the lake they obtained fish, and Neoma visited the mainland in his canoe, bringing back plenty of game. The two were very happy all through the golden autumn when, according to the legends of their tribe, Shawandasee, the South Wind, ruled the land; and from his pipe the smoke ascending filled the sky with haze and vapor, filled the air with dreamy softness, gave a twinkle to the water, touched the rugged hills with smoothness. Brought the tender Indian summer.

One day Neoma went to the mainland on a hunting expedition. He was gone until sunset, bringing back in his canoe the carcass of a deer. The wigwam was deserted.

Neoma recalled Mochimantou. He hastened to that brave's home and soon learned that Winona was indeed a prisoner there. She was confined in a cave, and because the entrance to her prison was guarded by evil spirits, all Neoma's efforts to rescue his bride were in vain. Always Winona was singing the weird death song of their tribe. Thus did Neoma know that hope had died in the maiden's breast.

On a summer morning Neoma climbed to the top of a tall pine that stood near the cave's mouth. Directly beneath him a pool, formed by the damming of the brook, sparkled and gleamed in the rays of sunlight that stole down through the foliage, to touch its placid surface with caressing fingers. Suddenly Neoma saw an unusual commotion below him. From the cave came several warriors of his native village. They bore with them a burden, and the young brave's heart broke when he saw that it was the dead form of Winona. The maiden had died of grief, and the cruel Mochimantou had given permission for her people to carry her body away for burial.

There was nothing for Neoma to live for. He began to sing the same plaintive death song that had been ever on the lips of his beloved. Still singing he threw himself down, to die in the pool below. So sad was it all that the waters of the brook took up the weird chant, and still they sing it. In days of storm and wind the song rose so high that the Indians gave to the stream the name of Roaring Brook. Today the stream threads its way through the woods to discharge its water in the bay. Near the bay the stream widens, and there among the gnarled roots of the venerable cedars, crossed by decaying tree trunks, is the spot where Neoma went to his death. M the tourist lingers there he will hear the weird death song, always providing that he has in his possession the key of imagination that unlocks the gateway to the realm of fancy.

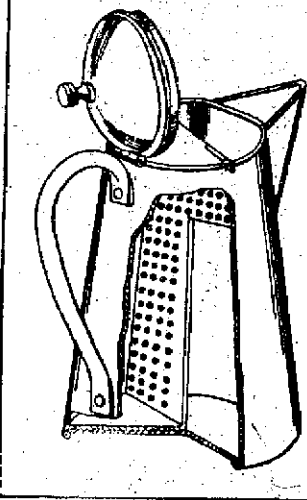

How to Tell the Grizzlies.
 Donald's description of the performing bear that he had seen down the street grew perceptibly more picturesque when it developed that no other member of the family had seen the animal, and enlarged from just a plain bear into a monstrous grizzly. Skeptical Dorothy, from her superior eight years, questioning some of his details, even demanded proof that it was a grizzly at all. The convincing rejoinder was forthcoming that while he had been standing right across the street from the bear he had "distinctly heard it grizzle."—Woman's Home Companion.

Don't Heat Knives.
 Never heat a knife on the stove for cutting frosting; it ruins the temper. Instead, pour hot water over the blade, or dip it into hot water.

WOMAN-BUILT COFFEESPOT.

An Internal Partition to Keep the Grounds From Reaching Cup.

The woman who has made coffee for generations after generations should naturally have acquired some facility on the subject, and it is quite in the order of things that she should have something to offer to humanity at large in the matter of the proper way of making the beverage, which is so well liked and so well needed. This problem has always been the means of keeping the grounds in the water while the coffee is brewing and to separate them when it comes to the point of serving. A great many complicated devices have been devised to accomplish this object, but the objection made by women to most of them is that there are a great many parts to be cleaned every time the apparatus is made use of. The arrangement shown herewith, which has been recently patented by a woman overcomes this drawback. It consists of a single partition of perforated metal, preferably aluminum, which slips into the coffee pot and effectively maintains a complete separation between the coffee grounds and the brewed article. This is clearly shown in the drawings.

BETTER THAN TRUNK STRAP

A Metal Binder Entirely Encircling the Box.

Few persons are satisfied to let their trunks go into the hands of the baggage-man without some greater protection than the ordinary catches placed there by the trunk manufacturer, so that most persons resort to the use of a trunk strap. This is an additional protection of considerable value, but does not save the contents in case of unusually severe treatment at the hands of the baggage-smasher, or in a railroad casualty. A new invention is shown herewith, which is designed to take the place of the trunk strap, offering increased protection for the box and its contents. This is made of steel and which will withstand much harder use than leather, and is designed to completely encircle the trunk in all directions in the same manner as a package is sometimes tied. When the binder is placed around the trunk as desired, the ends are secured by means of a toggle lever, which will hold the two ends firmly together and which may be readily parted when access to the interior of the trunk is wanted. For additional security these ends may be locked.

CALL A CONFERENCE TO TALK HIGHWAYS

Contractors, Road Builders and Township Chairmen Will Meet at Court House Next Wednesday.

County Highway Commissioner C. E. Moore has received a letter from F. M. Baisley of the state highway commission authorizing him to call a meeting of contractors, roller men, checkers, road builders, township chairmen and others interested in the construction of county highways for next Wednesday afternoon at the court house. At this time Mr. Baisley will be present to outline the season's road work in Rock county, to lay before the road builders the general plans and to discuss means and methods. New contract forms which have been made out for this season will be gone over and explained by Mr. Moore.

A feature of this year's county and state aid work will be inspection by agents of the state highway commission when the various pieces of new road are completed. The road must be accepted by the state commission before it can be incorporated into the county system.

Mr. Moore has sent out fifty or more notices of the meeting next Wednesday and is anxious to secure a large attendance of all persons who are vitally concerned in the building of county roads.

AMERICAN FENCE

ORIGINAL AND GENUINE

STEEL POSTS AND GATES

Over half the farmers of America are recommending American Fence. Let the judgment of this majority be your guide.

More For Your Money

AMERICAN FENCE has always been the economical fence. Now it's a better investment than ever. The same superior steel (open hearth or Bessemer), the same big, stiff wires—but the galvanizing is even better than ever, being heavier, more permanent, giving added insurance against rust. Investigate American Fence. Note the prices and you'll do some fencing this year.

The "American" method of galvanizing makes this fence unquestionably the best that is possible to produce, and is the result of years of study by high salaried experts.
